World Watches Historic Moon Liftoff

SPACE CENTER, Houstor (UPI) —Apollo 15 astronauts David R. Scott and James B Irwin lifted off the moon in the first televised blastoff from its surface today, playing "Off We Go Into the Wild Blue Yonder" from a tape recorder tucked away in their lunar lander Falcon.

A few minutes after wrapping up three days of bountiful exploration on and underneath the moon's surface, the two explorers made radio contact with their orbiting colleague, Alfred M. Worden, riding the command ship Endeavour.

The Falcon and the mothership were to link up, spend two more days circling the moon and then start the 250,000-mile ride toward a splashdown Saturday in the Pacific north of Hawaii.

The Air Force song came as a surprise when it sounded off a few seconds after ignition lifted the Falcon from its four legs toward lunar orbit.

A camera on Rover I, the astronauts' electric buggy which carried them on three expeditions in man's most rewarding exploration of the moon, recorded the liftoff. The rover was parked 300 feet from the Falcon.

Ground controllers had hoped to pan the TV camera upward to follow the flight, but the camera's drive mechanism failed, foiling the attempt.

Nonetheless, a worldwide television audience was treated to a sight never before seen by man —the launch of a spacecraft from a surface other than Earth's.

President Nixon watched the liftoff —which came precisely on time, 1:11 p.m. EDT —from his White House office.

From Worden in the Endeavour came this word as Falcon rose toward orbit: "okay, Falcon, (this is) Endeavour. I've got you locked up on VHF (very high frequency radio)."

At 1:28 p.m. EDT, Scott reported seeing the command ship far ahead.

Scott and Irwin spent four hours 25 minutes outside their four-legged moonship on their third excursion in an electric car tried for the first time. The last surface activity brought their total time outside Falcon to about 18 hours and 27 minutes —within 1 hour, 12 minutes of the total logged by the three previous expeditions.

They returned to Falcon almost reluctantly for the last time.

"It's been great —fabulous place up here," the astronauts told ground controllers at Houston as they wound up their final lunar excursion and climbed back into the Falcon.

About the last thing Scott did before mounting the nine steps of the ladder running up the side of Falcon and sealing the hatch behind him was to park his space buggy on a rise about 300 feet from Falcon so its TV camera could record the liftoff.

The thrust from the spacecraft's engine sprayed metal foil around the landing site and the Falcon rose straight up over the gray lunar terrain.

Ten seconds after liftoff, the craft began a gentle pitch as it accelerated toward an initial orbit around the moon.

A short plume of flame trailed Falcon's ascent stage.

At four minutes after launch, the astronauts had accelerated to almost 2,000 miles an hour, skimming about 36,000 feet above the eastern edge of the moon's Sea of Rains.

Scott and Irwin collected a record 230 pounds of moon rock and soil during their three expeditions on the surface in their electric car, Rover I. This surpassed by 15 pounds the samples brought back by all their predecessors on the moon. With ground control telling them everything was "go," the astronauts got a radar fix on their orbiting mothership ahead of them six minutes after liftoff.

The moon explorers reached a safe orbit around the moon at 1:18 p.m. EDT.

The moon explorers gave careful attention to pressurizing the cabin, and kept their space suits on just in case anything went wrong. Thirty-three days ago, three Soviet spacemen, not wearing their suits, died from a lack of oxygen upon return from a record Earth orbit mission of neary 24 days.

"Look at that mountain!" he exclaimed.

"Dave," replied Irwin, "I'm reminded of my favorite biblical passage from the Psalms —I will look unto the hills, from whence cometh my help." It was an approximation of the 121st Psalm.

Before takeoff, for the benefit of Earth viewers, Scott performed a gravity experiment, simultaneously dropping a feather (from a Falcon, he said) and a hammer. When they both hit the surface at the same time, he said: "How about that! That proves Mr. Galileo (the discoverer of gravity) was right in his findings ... Nothing like a little science on the moon, I always say."

Besides the record time on the surface, Scott and Irwin added to the record 165 pounds of lunar samples collected over

U.S. To Vote For Peking Seat In U.N.

Will Resist Any Effort At Ousting Of Taiwan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States will vote for admission of Communist China to the United Nations, but fight any attempt to oust National China from the world organization, Secretary of State William P. Rogers said today.

The Secretary of State told a news conference that while both Communist China and Nationalist China claim to represent all the Chinese people, those clains need not prejudice the participation of both Peking and Taipei in the United Nations.

"United States accordingly will support action at the General Assembly this fall, calling for seating the Peoples Republic of China" Rogers said. "At tha same time the United States will oppose any action to expel the Republic of China or otherwise deprive it of representation in the United Nations."

Rogers declined to reveal the details or the tactics the United States would use to achieve its goal of having both Chinas in the united Nations.

He also was unable to say whether the Taiwan government would walk out of the United Nations, as it had so often said it would, if Communist China is admitted.

The Secretary of State said in a prepared three-page statement:

"Our consultations have also shown that any action to deprive the Republic of China of its representation would meet strong opposition in the General Assembly. Certainly as I have said, the United States will oppose it.

"The Republic of China has played a loyal and conscientious role in the United Nations since the organization was founded. It has lived up to all of its charter obligations. Having made remarkable progress in developing its own economy, it has cooperated internationally by providing valuable technical assistance to a number of less developed countries particularly in Africa.

"The position of the United States is that if the United Nations is to succeed in its peace-keeping role, it must deal with the realities of the world in which we live. Thus, the United States will cooperate with those who, whatever their view on the status of the relationship of the two governments, wish to continue to have the Republic of China represented in the United Nations," Rogers said. Rogers carefully skirted all questions intended to draw from him details of possible formulations for dual Chinese representation, and whether Communist China might assume the seat on the Security Council which is now held by Nationalist China.

Steel Price Up In Wage Accord

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — U.S. Steel Corp. today announced a sweeping series of price increases to meet what it called "inflationary" increased in a wage contract agreement reached with the United Steelworkers Union (USW) Sunday night.

The nation's leading steel company said the increases averaged 8 per cent on its carbon and alloy steel products, the firm's entire line of products with exception of stainless steel. Other basic steel producers were expected to quickly follow U.S. Steel's lead.

Effective Aug. 5, U. S. Steel said prices of its semi-finished bar, rod, wire, structural, plate, railroad and tubular products would be increased. Tin mill products would be increased effective Oct. 1, and sheet and strip products and raw pipe for conduit Dec. 1.

"Over the three years of the past labor contract our experience has been that price increases ... have not been sufficient to cover cost increases, resulting in continuous erosion of earning capability," U. S. Steel said.

"To prevent further erosion under the new contract, it is necessary that we increase our net proceeds from steel mill products promptly."

The increases averaged $15 per ton on cold rolled sheets, one of the firm's biggest tonnage items because of its widespread use by automobile and household appliance makers. Structural shapes and floor plates, all used in the construction industry, also were increased an average of $15 per ton.

Specialty items such as axles and alloy pressure seamless tubing, both of which represent only a very small fraction of U.S. Steel production, were increased $6 and $57 per ton respectively.

Steelworkers, expressing satisfaction with the new contract, began preparing mills for the resumption of steel production.

Maintenance men were the first workers to report to fire up cooled furnaces that were banked in preparation for a strike that never developed. Production workers will then be called to begin the actual steelmaking process.

Descriptions such as "most beautiful" and "better than any previous contract" were heard from rank and file members of the United Steel Workers Union.

U.S.W. President I. W. Abel and steel industry bargainers won praise from U.S. Secretary of Labor James Hodgson for "a remarkable demonstration of leadership" in "averting a crippling steel strike." Hodgson added: "We are pleased the new contract contains a special provision to encourage productivity."

Top industry negotiator L. Heath Larry, vice president of U.S. Steel, the nation's leading producer, said the contract is "unquestionably inflationary," and would raise labor costs 15 per cent in the first year.

Some industry analysts predicted the steel companies would have to seek price increases of 8 per cent per year to keep profits at the presettlement levels, thus worsening the American industry's competitive position at a time when foreign steel is pouring into the United States at a record rate.

The steel settlement, given final approval by the 600-member Conference of Local Leaders three hours before the midnight deadline, provides benefits estimated at 30 per cent or $1.13 per hour for steelworkers who now average $3.45.

Crackdown On Mafia In Sicily

PALERMO, Sicily (UPI) — More than 300 policemen staged surprise raids on the homes of suspected Mafia members in western Sicily Monday, arresting six men and filing 1,106 charges against 81 other persons.

The raids, which netted guns, explosives and stolen vehicles, were a continuation of the crackdown aimed at crushing the Mafia. So far nearly 40 reputed gangsters have been banished to two small islands and more than 30 other suspects arrested.

The identities of the six men arrested Monday were not released.

Police said they went to more than 250 homes of Mafia suspects and turned up 67 shotguns, 35 pistols, 515 rounds of ammunition and 439 pounds of explosives. They said they also found stolen cars, motorcycles and tractors. Most of the charges filed by police dealt with the possession of firearms or stolen vehicles.

The anti-Mafia campaign began following a nationwide uproar over the assassination of Pietro Scaglione, the city public prosecutor of Palermo, in May. He was the highest ranking public official slain in Italy since the end of World War II.

A number of suspects, including some with alleged ties with organized crime in the United States, have been rounded up and shipped to islands off Sardinia and Tunisia under a 1956 law permitting exile for persons considered dangerous to society.

Among the men rounded up for banishment were Joe Adonis, onetime reputed kingpin of gambling on the U.S. East Coast, and Frank (Three Fingers) Coppola, a reputed onetime lieutenant in New York of Lucky Luciano. Both men were deported from the United States.

Union, Rails Reach Agreement To End Costly 18-Day Walkout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United Transportation Union (UTU) and the railroads reached agreement today on a contract ending an 18-day selective strike that had shut down 10 lines and rippled the nation's freight-hauling capacity.

The rail settlement came only one day after the United Steel Workers and the basic steel industry reached agreement on a new contract that provides a 30 per cent increase over three years.

Assistant Labor Secretary W. J. Usery Jr., flanked by representatives of both management and union, announced the settlement at a news conference in the Labor Department. He said the striking train crewmen would begin returning to work at 12:01 p.m. today.

Details of the rail settlement were not announced. But industry negotiator J. P. Hiltz said in answer to a question that the agreement on work rule changes, the heart of the dispute, "pretty much conform" to the recommendations of a White House emergeny board several months ago.

The White House board had recommended extensive changes in some major work rules, such as allowing a crew to carry a train more than 10 miles without extra pay, and breaking down some of the traditional work barriers between road and yard crews.

Usery later said in a statement that "improved wages, revised work rules and employee income protection is provided. A new era of improved productivity for the industry and higher living standard for the employees will result."

Railroads around the country began putting trains back on the road to begin hauling away a huge backlog of agricultural and industrial products. The Norfolk & Western, the nation's major coal carrying road, said its trains would be back on the road "within a couple of hours."

Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson said it would take longer to resume full operation because yards were clogged.

Hodgson praised the settlements in both the steel and rail industries as ones which will allow for the continuing orderly expansion of the economy.

Other rail unions had accepted the board's recommendations on work rule changes some time ago. Agreement on a wage increase — 42 per cent during a 42-month contract — also was reached some time ago.

Sources said earlier that if the strike had continued much longer the administration would have asked Congress to pass legslation halting the walkout and imposing a settlement. Usery said the administration "was happy" it would not have to do so.

Charles Luna, president of the UTU, said the agreement "proved once again that if negotiations are carried on honestly, collective bargaining will work.

"We have made an agreement we are proud of, we have made an agreement we can live with," Luna said. "It will go down in history that selective strikes have worked."

Fliers Try For World Record

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —Two Australian pilots set out Sunday in an attempt to set a round-the-world flight record from west to east.

Trevor Brougham, 37, and Bob Dickeson, 31, both of Whyalla, South Australia, will try to surpass the record of 122 hours and 38 minutes. They were flying in a twin-engine Beechcraft Barron.

Their itinerary includes Darwin, Australia, Rabaul, New Britain; the Marshall Islands, Honolulu, San Francisco, Toronto, London, Athens, Bahrein on the Persian Gulf, Bombay and Singapore.

'Most Wanted' List In Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government, with U.S. financial backing, has launched a pilot program of "the 50 most wanted" Viet Cong terrorists wit rewards for individual captures ranging up to $11,000.

The program, being ballyhooed nationwide on Vietnamese television, is being conducted in four provinces, one in each of the four military regions. The idea is to generate enthusiasm for a lagging branch of the Phoenix Pacification Program by offering substantial financial rewards.

The Viet Cong on the list are not top echelon members, but are known terrorists who have thrown grenades or engaged in other activities where civilian lives have been lost.

SELECTING GRAND JURORS DEFENDED

Judge Says Its Hard To Get Blacks To Serve As Angela Case Enters New Course

By MARY LEYDECKER

A Marin Superior Court judge today testified that "we try hard to get black people on the grand jury but most won't serve."

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner gave his views on grand jury selection during a pretrial hearing in the Angela Davis case. She has contended that the grand jury which indicted her on murder, kidnapping and conspiracy charges was not representative of a cross-section of the county.

"Most Johnny-come-latelies are no good for public service," the judge said, describing how he chooses persons to nominate for the grand jury. He looks for those who have demonstrated reliability, he said, by activity in such organizations as the Boy Scouts and Red Cross and by being members of bodies such as planning commissions.

"It's hard to find people who will devote enough time," the judge said. "Young people can't afford the time away from money-making activities," he continued.

At another point, Gardiner, who said he knew many blacks through his Democratic Party activities, said that many blacks don't want to serve on the grand jury because "they're afraid of being called Uncle Toms."

During questioning by Miss Davis's chief attorney, Howard Moore, Judge Gardiner said that he was "reasonably sure that we all had an African genesis."

Asked if he is a member of the white race, Gardiner replied, "I think so." He explained later that he did not know "how far back it was before I had black ancestors."

He said he "had heard" that the Elks Club, of which he has been a member since the 1930s, did not admit blacks but he said he joined the club because "of the lunches and dominoes."

In answer to questions about his views on young people, the 68-year-old judge said, "do you want me to define a hippie." He then went on to say that he thought between 5 and 10 per cent of the young persons were the "noisy young." They hold nihilistic views, he said, and MOMENTARILY QUIET — Two Buddhist monks with umbrellas walked past a South Vietnamese Armored Personal Carrier (APC) last week near the Cambodian town of Prey Nhay, about 80 miles west of Saigon. South Vietnamese troops are making a sweep of the area searching for Viet Cong headquarters. Communists fired a barrage of mortars late Sunday at the Tay Nih Ninh air base, a South Vietnamese staging area for drives into Cambodia. There were no immediate reports of damages or casualties.

South Viet Troops Kill 26 Reds In Cambodian Attack

SAIGON (UPI) —South Vietnamese troops attacked a Communist staging area in Cambodia south of Phnom Penh today, field reports said. The reports said at least 26 Communists were killed in the fighting and preceding air strikes.

South Vietnamese fighter-bombers killed at least 20 Communists in strikes Sunday after locating the staging area, and infantrymen killed six more in a followup attack today, the reports said.

Field officers said the area, 24 miles southwest of the Mekong River town of Neak Luong, was used for staging North Vietnamese troops for infiltration into South Vietnam's Mekong Delta.

The U.S. command in Saigon announced two Americans were killed Sunday afternoon when their OH6 light observation helicopter was shot down 22 miles southeast of Hue in the northern quarter of South Vietnam.

The U.S. command announced the American troop level in Vietnam dropped to 226,300 in the week ending last Thursday with the withdrawal of 2,900 more men. Another 2,990 began preparation for withdrawal Sunday, the command said.

Viet Cong gunners wounded 11 South Vietnamese troops Sunday night in a 30-minute mortar attack on a U.S. helicopter base northwest of Saigon. The South Vietnamese commander of the base said security was inadequate since thousands of American troops left the region.

Military sources in Phnom Penh said North Vietnamese unit attacked a vital highway bridge nine miles north of the capital early today, killing an officer and wounding four other soldiers. The Communists overran a government position south of Phnom Penh killing five persons and leaving 20 missing in action.

The shelling of the base at Tay Ninh West 50 miles northeast of Saigon came less than three days after the U.S. helicopter assault company returned. The same helicopter unit had left the base Wednesday following an earlier Communist shelling and ground attack that damaged two Huey helicopters and wounded four Americans.

Maj. Gen. Nguyen Xuan Thinh, commander of the South Vietnamese 25th Division, which operates Tay Ninh west camp, said the last U.S. ground combat unit, the 3rd Squadron of the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, left July 25.

"We used to have two battalions of perimeter guards, perimeter lights maintained by. . .engineers and chippers on station all the time with flares and they used to keep the area around the base completely defoliated," Thinh said.

"Now that the U.S. troops have gone, we have only RF and PF (Regional and Popular Forces Militiamen) on the perimeter and it is too large."

Sudan Uses Diplomatic Boot On Soviet, Bulgarian Envoys

KHARTOUM (UPI)—The Sudanese government said today it had declared the Soviet embassy's No. 2 man and the Bulgarian ambassador persona non grata and ordered them to leave the country.

Foreign Undersecretary Fahker el-Din said Soviet counsellor Mikhail Orlov was given 48 hours and Bulgarian ambassador Stoyam Zaimov two weeks to get out of Sudan.

Political sources said Soviet ambassador Anatoly Nikolaev also likely would be withdrawn from the country within 24 hours as relations between the two countries deteriorated in the wake of a Sudanese purge of Communists.

The government of President Jaafar Numeiry said the nation's top Communists were among the plotters of the coup that overthrew his government for 72 hours two weeks ago. Numeiry regained control in a countercoup.

El-Din said expulsion orders were handed to Orlov and Zaimov Sunday night.

The expulsions came hours after the Sudanese announced their ambassador to Sofia and Moscow was being recalled and was en route to Khartoum.

The move coincided with the expiration of the 48 hours notice Numeiry gave the Soviet Union to cease criticizing Sudan for the counter-coup purge. The Russian Tass news agency earlier described the execution of coup leaders as a "bloody terror."

The threat was passed to the Soviets, this country's main supplier of arms, aid, advisers and trade Saturday morning. It demanded Moscow stop protesting about Khartoum's harsh crackdown against local Communists involved in the short-lived coup July 19.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Panthers Hit

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Police Chief Clarence Giarrusso testified Sunday it was Black Panthers, not police, who opened fire first in their Sept. 15, 1970, gun battle.

"We had many complaints from residents in the area they were fearful of their lives because of the gunfire and chaotic conditions which existed in the area," he said.

Giarrusso, testifying in the opening round of the trial of 12 Black Panthers—nine men and three women —charged for attempted murder during the shootout, said police moved in on the Panther's headquarters after they put two undercover policemen through a kangaroo trial and then beat them.

Defense attorneys say the Panthers fired in self-defense because they had every reason to believe the New Orleans Police Department was out to "murder" them.

JFK Papers Open

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI)—More than 3 million documents relating to the presidency of John F. Kennedy were opened for research today at the temporary quarters of the Kennedy library here.

Most of the papers were drawn from files compiled at the White House during the Kennedy administration. No security classified materials are included.

"The White House files include correspondence to and from the President and members of the White House staff as well as memoranda, reports and correspondence relating to various federal government programs, legislation and other activities of special interest to the White House," said John Stewart, acting director of the John F. Kennedy Library.

Another Report

NEW YORK (UPI)—Following the publication of the Pentagon papers, the State Department "locked away" its own retrospective study of the Vietnam War and told officials to deny its existence, Time magazine reported Sunday.

Time said the top-secret study was ordered in 1968 by the former director of the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research, Tom Hughes. It said the report was "far less voluminous and ambitious (than the Pentagon papers), but with considerable potential impact."

The article said the report compared the key decision of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations with the bureau's own judgments.

Superstar Concert

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two of the former Beatles joined Bob Dyland and other stars and superstars of the rock world Sunday for a pair of benefit concerts which raised an estimaed $250,000 for regufees from East Pakistan.

Nearly 45,000 persons —most of them the same ones who created Beatlemania six and seven years ago — jammed Madison Square Garden to overflowing in the afternoon and evening to hear George Harrison, Ringo Starr, Dylan, Eric Clapton, Ravi Shankar and Leon Russell among others in what was more of a super jam session than an organized concert.

Landon's Support

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI)—Alf Landon, the Republican who challenged Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency in 1936, today announced a pledge of support for President Nixon's proposed China visit and said a "cross section of American leadership" co-signed his pledge.

Landon, 83, former governor of Kansas, said he has the signatures of 11 national figures on his petition, including United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock and Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review.

"I speak for a cross section of America's higher level of leadership and the nation's intellectual life in pledging the strongest possible support to our President in his bold and realistic program to cultivate better understanding with the Peoples Republic of China," Landon said.

Jamboree Opens

ASAGIRI HEIGHTS, Japan (UPI)—About 20,000 boy scouts —some wearing turbans, but most wearing the famed peaked cap —gathered here today in a huge grassy amphitheater at the foot of sacred Mount Fuji and formally opened the 13th Boy Scout Jamboree.

Hundreds of brightly colored tents sprinkled the grassy foothills of Fuji as the formal opening ceremonies were held at 4:30 p.m. (0730 GMT) amid the throb of drums and columns of Boy Scouts marching in drill formations.

The host Japanese Boy Scout Organization said that nearly 23,000 Scouts from 86 countries were scheduled to arrive for the jamboree, the first in four years.

The planet Jupiter's atmosphere is composed largely of ammonia and methane.

KEIKICHI MASUHARA
Takes the blame

Air Crash Aftermath: Aide Quits

TOKYO (UPI)—Prime Minister Eisaku Sato acceptedthe resignation today of Japan's top defense official, Keikichi Masuhara, who took the blame for the collision of a fighter plane and an airliner that killed 162 persons.

Sato named Naomi Nishimura to succeed Masuhara as director general of the Self-Defense Agency. Before resigning, Masuhara accepted the resignation of Gen. Yasuhiro Ueda, chief of staff of the Air Self-Defense Force.

The collision of the military jet flown by a student pilot and the All Nippon Airways 727 trijet carrying 55 passengers and a crew of seven Friday was the worst airplane disaster in history.

Sato, who accepted Masuhara's resignation at an emergency cabinet meeting, also ordered a full review of the existing aviation control system and pledged to compensate the families of the crash victims.

Police officials in northern Japan continued to hold the pilot of the jet fighter, Sgt. Yoshima Ichikawa, and his instructor, Capt. Yamotsu Kuma who was in a separate plane. Both pilots were arrested Saturday night and charged with involuntary manslaughter ariing from "professional negligence."

Police officials in Morioka, 275 miles north of here, said there were indications that the accident may ave arisen from an error on Kuma's part in choosing the altitude and air route at which the two jet fighters were flying.

Five Drown As Rain Douses East Coast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

At least five persons drowned and six or seven others were missing and feared drowned in Baltimore County, Md. as several inches of rain doused the Eastern Seaboard Sunday.

Two persons drowned in the ity of Baltimore. Authorities said Katie Merrill, 46, stepped from her car into a sewer filled with six feet of water. The body of Louis Maciaciana, 73, was pulled from a flooded basement.

Three other drownings were reported in suburban areas of the county.

Two bodies were recovered from the Little Gunpowder River in east Baltimore county near a washed out bridge where six or seven others were feared to have drowned. In Towson, Md. a boy drowned in a sewer.

Rain continued throughout the night with 2.5 inches falling after midnight today. At Bel Air, Md., not far from the Little Gunpowder River site, slightly more than 5 1-2 inches of rain fell in a 12-hour period.

Asked how many persons were affected by flooding, a policeman relied, "We won't know until we get in there and get them out."

New York City had more than two inches of rain during the day, flooding dozens of intersections to depths as much as five feet. One intersection collapsed, leaving a hole 10 feet deep.

The Staten Island Rapid Transt system was shut down, at least two bridges were rendered impassible by flooding at one end or the other, and many sections of the New York City subway flooded, causing delays.

The rainfall brought the New York City total since Thursday to 5.56 inches.

The National Weather Service listed 1.94 inches of rain in Philadelphia; 1.73 inches in Tallahassee, Fla., with .92 inches in one hour; 1.70 inches in Morgantown, W. Va., 1.10 inches in Roanoke, Va., and 3.39 inches in Biloxi, Miss., in 24 hours.

The West, meanwhile, sweltered.

Record setting or tying highs for Sunday included 103 at Pendleton, Ore., and 101 at Missoula, Mont. Fire danger reportedly was extremely high in the Pendleton area.

Sunny skies and temperatures in the 90s brought more than a million persons to Los Angeles beaches Sunday. The water afforded little reuef — its temperature was between 70 and 80.

The Midwest, usually contending with its own heat wave at this time of year, continued to have record low temperatures Sunday.

Record lows included 50 at St. Joseph, Mo., 53 at Indianapolis, Ind., 54 at Evansville, Ind., 55 at Louisville, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio, and 58 at Oklahoma City, Okla., and Kansas City, Mo.

Doubt Is Cast On Sickle Figure

NEVADA CITY (UPI)—The widow of one of two campers slashed to death with a sickle says she doubts the killer is the man police have named as a suspect in the savage slayings.

Police have issued a warrant for Clarence Otis Smith, 43, an Auburn garbageman.

"I definitely don't think Smith did it," said Mrs. Beatrice Simmons at her home in Weimar.

"I wouldn't be surpried if he were dead somewhere," said Mrs. Smith, who packs a .38-caliber pistol on her hip.

"Scared? I'm terrified," she told the Sacramento Union in an interview published today. But if she is ever threatened, she said, "I'm going to use this pistol and worry about it later."

"I believe the killer was out to get me and not my husband," she said.

Her husband, John, and Mrs. Donna Fitzhugh, of Ontario, were slain July 12 when the killer slashed his way into tents in the Bear River area.

It was reported during the weekend that sheriff's deputies found eyeglasses belonging to Smith at the scene of the killings.

They checked the prescription and that was one of the main clues leading to the warrant against Smith.

Investigaors also reportedly found bloodstained clothes, an 18-inch knife with a curved blade and a .41-caliber pistol hidden in Smith's home.

The gun was believed to have belonged to Simmons, 20, who fired three shots in his fight to the death.

Three other persons were wounded by the killer, who "growled and groaned like an animal," according to the survivors.

Mrs. Simmons, who said she had bought some old furniture once from Smith, said her husband had never met the suspect.

But she declined to say why she believed someone other than Smith was the slayer, except to say he didn't fit a police drawing from witness descriptions.

"But there's one thing for sure," she said. "I'll never believe Smith did it. I only wish they'd catch the real one just so they could ask him 'Why?' I dreamed last night John was standing over my bed asking why they killed him ...and I couldn't answer him."

Mrs. Simmons had been camping with her husband and children but had returned to send her children to school and didn't return the night of the slayings.

Mrs. Simmons, who now packs a .38-caliber pistol on her hip, said she feared that the killer may come to get her.

"The man who did it is not afraid," she said. "He's already proved that."

The widow also explained the alias of Jimen Satan used by her late husband. She said he assumed the name to obtain another driver's license after his original permit was revoked because of "a whole string of traffic violations."

Muskie Urges Nixon To Sell Israel Jets

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, has urged president Nixon, "in the strongest possible terms," to sell Irael the F4 Phantom jets it wants.

"We all pray for a political settlement in the Middle East that will leave Israel secure and will permit our friends in the Arab world to turn to the great task of national development," Muskie said Sunday in a statement. "But prospects for a political settlemnt are surely not advanced by a military balance that shifts dangerously in favor of the Arabs."

Library Plans May Be Realized

A young San Rafael couple's hope of establishing a library for the village children of Pelawig, Philippines, may be realized, thanks to Marin County residents.

The couple, Scott and Dorothy Rubenstein, is on Peace Corps assignment in the village.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Rubenstein, issued a plea in the Independent-Journal last month for books to send to them. Mrs. Rubenstein reported that response has been "fantastic" and they have sent several packages of books daily.

They asked that donors continue to call them at their home at 220 Canal Street, Apt. 20, for book pickups.

Budget Hearing

The Fairfax School District board will hold a public hearing on its $1.14 million publication budget, at a meeting tomorrow, at 7:45 p.m. in the district office on Park Road. The 1971-72 budget is an increase of $26,283 over the $1.11 million tentative spending budget adopted June 8.

Legal Nod Given Property Tax Plan

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger announced today the legal requirements have been met for the circulation of signatures petitions to begin on a proposed constitutional amendment to restrict property taxes to 1 per cent of market value.

Younger said the initiative is sponsored by Howard Jarvis, who has 90 days to collect 520,806 signatures to qualify the initiative for submission to voters next year.

Jarvis was an unsuccessful Republican candidate for the state Board of Equalization last year and has run for statewide office in the past.

His proposed initiative is similar to an unsuccessful proposal—Proposition 9 —sponsored by Los Angeles Assessor Philip E. Watson in 1968, which was defeated by voters.

Younger said if Jarvis fails to collect the necessary signatures within 90 days, state law permits him an additional 40 days to continue trying.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. would then have to certify the petitions before the proposition could appear on the ballot.

Man Hurt When Truck Overturns

Vincent J. Rosales, 32, of Pacifica, was treated Saturday at Marin General Hospital for body scrapes after the truck he was riding in went off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard west of Samuel P. Taylor State Park and overturned at the foot of an embankment.

The California Highway Patrol said the truck, containing several hundred pounds of fish, crashed about 2:30 a.m.

Driver of the truck, Kenneth M. Butori, 22, of San Francisco, was uninjured.

Workers had to load the fish into another truck in order to lighten the load and get the truck back on the road, officers reported.

Canadian Ports Will Be Used

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Seatrain Lines California says it plans to use Canadian ports for its operations to Hawaii because of the West Coast longshoremen's strike.

The firm said Sunday its Transoneida will leave new Westminster, B.C., for Honolulu on Aug. 13.

Since July 1, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union has been striking the Pacific Maritime Association in a contract dispute.

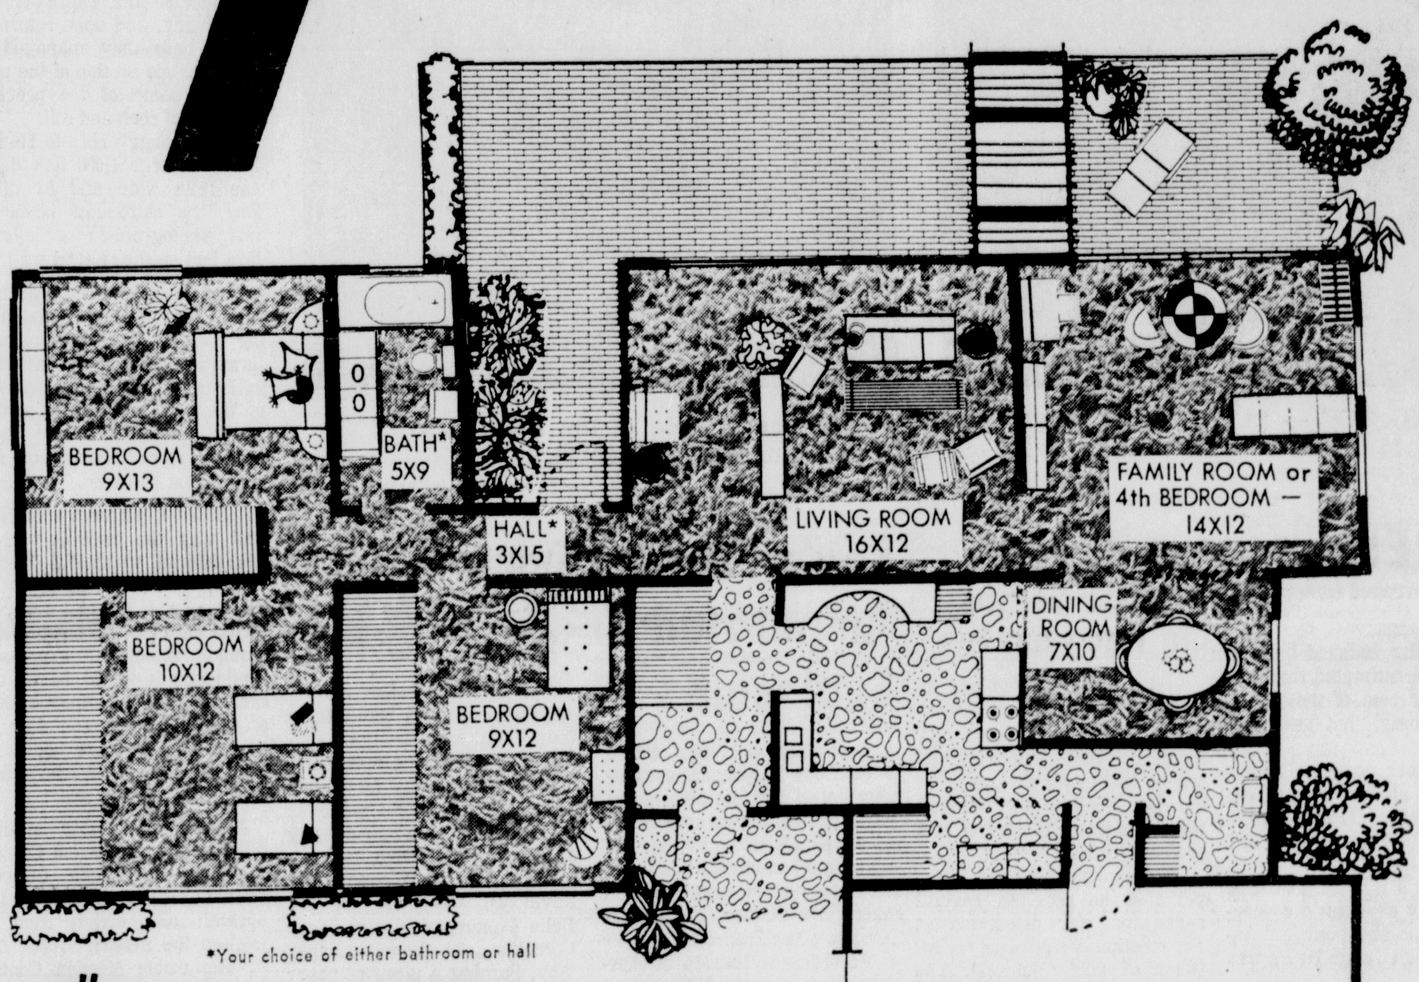

The union is seeking guaranteed annual wages, better and better pensions. Involved is the union demand that its members fill containers which are put aboard ships for overseas shipment.

TAKING OFF — In slow motion today the Apollo 15 Lunar Module Falcon blasts off from the surface of the moon, leaving its launching platform behind.

APOLLO

Since Neil A. Armstrong first set foot on the moon's grey dust July 20, 1969, American explorers have now spent about 38 hours, 6 minutes exploring the moon.

A frustrating experience delayed Scott and Irwin at the outset of their excursion today, forcing them to curtail their drive across a mountain valley to examine lava beds near their landing site.

Their first task was to recover a core sample that they drove eight feet into the surface Saturday. They spent 30 minutes removing and trying to dis-assemble the drill. Scott's exasperation with the whole thing was evident.

He wanted to give up and get going, but fellow astronaut Joseph Allen, at the controls at the Manned Spacecraft Center, insisted he recover the core for the deepest lunar sample ever collected.

"How many hours do you want me to spend on this drill, Joe?" Scott pleaded. "Just tell me it's that important and I'll feel better."

"It's that important," replied Allen.

"One, two, three, uhhh —one, two, three, uhhh —," called out the astronauts, trying to pull out the stubborn drill and the core sample pipe attached to it.

They finally succeeded, only to be frustrated again to separate the pipe into sections small enough to fit into the cramped spacecraft.

Allen gave them the go ahead to abandon the effort for the time being, and upon return to home base they managed to separate one section of the pipe holding some of the precious samples of rock and soil.

On the buggy ride to Hadley Rille, a gorge 1,000 feet deep, one mile wide and 62 miles long, the astronauts observed and photographed a layered lava bed on the canyon wall.

That will help scientists choose from among contradicting theories over the moon's formation because the layering indicated the lava which makes up the plain had formed at different intervals rather than pouring from the surface fissures all at one time.

Another significant scientific find was the recovery of a light-colored, crystal-filled rock which Scott identified as anorthosite. If his spot analysis turns out to be correct —and ground scientists expressed confidence it would be — the samples could help uncover other secrets of the evolution of the moon and other bodies in the solar system, including Earth.

Almost a quarter million miles away, at Mission Control in Houston, flight director Gerald Griffin radioed up to the seventh and eighth men to explore the moon:

"The whole Mission Control team wants to take their hats off to you. It was a fine job."

"Okay," Scott replied. "Thank you, Jerry. You know as well as we do that we couldn't do it without you."

Prior expeditions to the moon by the two-man crews of Apollo 11, 12 and 14 returned chiefly samples of basalts, formed by lava cooling rapidly on the surface. But anorthosite is believed to have cooled over billions of years on the surface. Almost all samples of the substance on the Earth have been eroded.

Conducting sightings and experiments from the orbiting Endeavour, Worden reported an observation which also excited geologists.

He saw "a whole series of small irregular-shaped cones" never observed by telescope.

The San Rafael Board of Education will adopt 1971-72 budgets for the elementary and high school districts at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Administration Building.

A suggestion to add one or two members between the ages of 18 to 21 to the parks and recreation commission will be one of the topics discussed at the San Anselmo City Council special meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at city hall.

City manager Alfred C. Kaeppel said he received several suggestions for discussion at the meeting designed to review items of public interest. The public also has been invited by the council to bring up any matter of concern.

Kaeppel said Councilman Lewis W. Stewart suggested discussing park exhibits in the San Anselmo Library; the possibility of a Marin Transit Systems demonstration route in Ross Valley to be financed by the county; youth hostels; volunteer landscaping of Center Boulevard and authorized hitchhiking stops.

Boy's Thumb Amputated: Explosion

A 15-year-old Point Reyes Station boy has undergone amputation of his left thumb and parts of two fingers as a result of an explosion while he was making a homemade bomb. He was reported in good condition today at Kaiser Foundation Hospital, San Francisco.

According to the Marin sheriff's office, Donald R. Morris of Inverness Road was taken to Kaiser Hospital, San Rafael at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday following the explosion in the bedroom of his home.

He was transferred to Kaiser, San Francisco, where doctors tried futilely to save his thumb and fingers, according to the sheriff's report.

Housing Authority Meeting Canceled

The regular meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority, scheduled for tomorrow, will not be held, according to Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of the agency. He explained the cancellation by saying the agency is negotiating for the Ridgeland property in Marin City with the California Development Company.

"We want to complete our negotiations before holding a meeting, so we can have something concrete to bring to the board," he said.

Two Booked For Possessing Pot, Stolen Property

Two 21-year-old San Rafael men were booked into Marin County Jail early today on suspicion of possessing marijuana and stolen property after they were arrested in Sausalito at the intersection of Bridgeway and San Carlos Avenue.

Police said an officer noticed David D. Chappelle, of 302 Belle Avenue, and Bruce Jacob Cornelius, 36 Bonnie Banks Way, burning a piece of paper and asked the pair for identification.

The policeman noticed that Chappelle was wearing no jacket and was shivering and also noticed a gold jacket in the bushes nearby. The men claimed they had never seen the jacket before and when the officer reached to pick it up, a television set dropped out.

Both were arrested and a preliminary search at the police station revealed a paper bag containing two ounces of suspected marijuana in Cornelius' jacket pocket.

No bail had yet been set for either man and both were to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Man Booked On Burglary Probe

A Santa Clara man found beside a broken door to a doctor's office was arrested Saturday on suspicion of burglary, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

Education Chief's Candid Observations On Schools

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. foresees more money crises in the nation's financially troubled schools this fall, "disaster level curtailment" of essential school services and continuing student violence in the high schools.

He told UPI many students are bored with school and "this is something we must confront" at the federal level.

Marland's candid observations about the first full school year he faces as U.S. Commissioner of Education were made in an interview with UPI Staff Writer Craig A. Palmer. Marland joined the Nixon administration cabinet last December, replacing James E. Allen Jr. Following, in question and answer form, are Marland's remarks.

Q. Is there going to be any letup in the school financial crisis this school year?

A. No, I think that we are still in for some difficult years, Craig, so long as the local school systems, particularly the big city school systems where the financial problems are so very grave, continue to rest heavily on the eroding property tax. This in my judgment is working against the amelioration of our financial problems.

Q. Are we going to see schools closing early, children going to school for half-day sessions, more extra-curricular activities being dropped?

A. We will continue to see that, I am afraid. And I think it is a dreadful condition which we are having to live through while we realign priorities among levels of government, federal, state and local. Unfortunately, the way in which our system of government works, we have to come up to the brink before we derive creative, new solutions. As classes grow larger, as programs are cut, as essential services are reduced or eliminated, we lose ground that education has fought to gain over the past 25 years.

Q. Realignment of priorities and coming to the brink really doesn't talk about what happens to the children caught in these crises. What about the child going through school now, what does this do to him a decade from now, 20 years from now?

A. The child is what this is all about. That's why we have an Office of Education. I would add that we are going to solve these issues. The American people place far too high a value on education to allow it to founder. There will be rough edges, as we stated. As for the child, there must be a regularized system of education for every child in this country from early childhood at least to kindergarten on up through opportunities for those who are qualified and interested to acquire four years of higher education. The modest enlargement of class size is not going to critically damage very many children.

Q. What figures are you talking about for class size?

A. If the class size goes from 28 to 31 and the community by so doing is able to derive budget stabilization, —in some cities it could be saving two or three million dollars —or more that proportion of handicap in slightly enlarging class size is not necessarily going to be a disaster.

Q. Is that one of the rough edges you are talking about that we will see this fall?

A. Yes, however, when you eliminate programs for the gifted and the handicapped, when you eliminate kindergarten and physical education ...

Q. Do you see that happening?

A. Yes, these are some of the possibilities of what I call disaster level curtailment that are very serious to children, especially those children whom those specialized programs are intended to serve. They are the things that tend to go first. They are the so-called extras in the eyes of some —things that can be done without, such as kindergarten.

Q. Are they really extras?

A. In my judgment, they are far from extras. They are at the very heart of individual needs of children. I regret that some of these offerings will be curtailed as judgments are applied to drastic budgetary constraints.

Q. What about looking at the financial crisis from the viewpoint of the teacher. Is there still a teacher shortage? Will there be full teacher employment this year?

A. There is not a teacher shortage. We are producing this year many thousands more teachers than our schools require or can afford. The surplus of teachers will probably bring an increased vitality and productivity to the teaching profession. Superintendents and principals will be able for the first time in many years to be quite selective in the numbers and quality of teachers they engage. This is good.

Q. Of course, financial crises aren't the only kind facing the schools this fall, particularly at the high school level with racial unrest and increasing student violence. Do you expect to see more of that this year?

A. Of course I'm an optimist. In terms of tensions between races, we are going to continue to go through a period of adjustment, and this adjustment may carry with it some outbreaks of hostility and indeed some outbreaks of extremely irregular student behavior. We have got to pass through this period in our history. We cannot simply stop and say that because there are irregularities and hostility and tension that we give up the whole idea of searching for a true way of life in which all parts of this land can live and work together. The work the Office of Education is advancing in terms of bringing about reality in integration, the hopes —or legislation on this subject, all point to a future in which there will be a racial integration in our schools.

Q. Of course, along with racial unrest there is the problems of drugs in the schools. What responsibility has the Office of Education for increasing drug education and what is it doing?

A. We have launched a substantial number of drug abuse programs so the states could launch training programs for faculties and specialists who will work with children, particularly in prevention. Many young people themselves are engaged in the contracts and programs we are supporting. We do know that some things don't work. The teacher scolding or authority wagging its finger at your people is not the way to solve this. We know that young people responsibly engaged in learning about this grave problem are their own best teachers. We are trying to build on that theory. Apart from that, the issue is more fundamental than mere therapy or corrective teaching. It has to do with the way our young people are thinking, the values they hold. I have to agree with some of them who describe to me the conditions of boredom they now encounter in their lives.

Q. And in their schools?

A. And in their schools. This is something we must confront. Some of our programs speak to this issue. So long as a young person is in school and unengaged and unimpressed with what the schools have to offer, we as teachers have fallen short of what we are expected to be ... Schools should be very important, very joyful in the lives of young people.

Q. Are you suggesting that in spite of all these catalog of horrors we have talked about that schools might face, that probably one of the more disastrous is this malaise of boredom many students find in their schools?

A. Boredom is the students' word for it. I'm not accepting that at face value. I hold that a young person who is bored ought to get hold of himself ... When he says he is bored, I have to ask him what he has done about correcting it.

Q. One of the reasons he says he is bored is because he has no opportunity to take part in the decision-making process. Will students have increasing opportunities to make decisions that affect their school lives?

A. This is happening now, Craig. It's happening at colleges, in high schools and certainly in the Office of Education at the federal level.

Q. Commissioner Marland, let's talk for a moment about experimental schools. For instance, we hear an awful lot about the four-day work week. Is there a chance we will see any four-day school weeks? What is the chance we will see any year-round schools this year?

A. I think there will be more year-round schools emerging this year. There are a few in motion now, and many schools are holding lively and creative summer sessions. In terms of a four-day work week, it may have effect on the schools. More and more, schools will grow away from fixed hours, fixed schedules, fixed school years.

Q. Will there be more education at earlier age levels?

A. I think there will. Ideas emerging in Congress as well as in this office will point to the desirability of child development prior to kindergarten. If we are going into child care centers, this should be viewed as something quite different from mere custodial accommodation for children. There should be learning opportunities. I would add that I am not enthusiastic about a universal child care situation in which we make it easy for families to neglect children.

Q. To conclude, many parents are turned off about what is happening in the schools, and I suspect one of the reasons is they fear a breakaway from tradition, too much experimentation. Is there too much change in the schools?

A. We are often charged with not having enough experimentation and change in the schools. Some parents have always been uneasy about experimentation in the schools. I know of no school where experimentation is so drastic as to threaten the effectiveness of the teaching. An experimental environment is something in which the child is stimulated to learn.

Red China's Policy On Existence

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist China said today she will continue to adhere to the five principles of peaceful coexistence to establish diplomatic relations with all counties.

An editorial in Peking's People's Daily, the most authoritative Communist Chinese newspaper, said China must try to establish normal diplomatic relations based on mutual respect for territorial integrity and sovereignty and equality and mutual benefit and peaceful co-existence.

"The Chinese people have done so in the past 21 years," it said. "Hereafter, we shall continue to adhere to this principle and establish and develop state relations with all countries willing to live together with our country in peace."

The editorial, enitled "A new chapter in Sino-Sierra Leone friendship," reiterated that Communist Chinese government is the sole legal government "representing the enire Chinese people," and "Taiwan province is an inalienable part of China's territory."

Sierra Leone and China agreed Friday to establish diplomatic relations.

"The fallacy concocted by imperialists and their retainers of so-called "Two Chinas', 'One China, one Taiwan,' 'The Taiwan independence movement,' and 'The status of Taiwan remains to be determined' and similar reproductions are all doomed to failure," it said.

Ex-British Leader Reflects On Johnson

LONDON (UPI) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson was never under illusions about Britain's disapproval of key points in his Vietnam policy, according to former Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

"He knew exactly where we stood on Vietnam," Wilson said Sunday on "Man In The News," a program broadcast by London Independent Weekend Television.

"If he bombed Hanoi and Haiphong, we would dissociate from it and indeed, did so," Wilson told a panel of three prominent British journalists.

"If he were to use atomic weapons, if he were to rock it up still further, we would dissociate, but I think it was a matter of British interest to take the policy we did on these questions."

Among the topics covered by Wilson during the interview were British presence east of Suez, U.S. demands for help in Vietnam and the relationship between the dollar and the pound.

He said he thought Britain "came reasonably well" out of its relationship with the United States during this period. "But of course it was a constant strain, almost a full time job, to handle this from time to time.

"It is certainly true that there was strong pressure both before 1964 and afterwards that we stay east of Suez, and I agreed with that policy—not because of American policies, but because I think of my own commonwealth connections," Wilson said.

Wilson became Labor prime minister in 1964, 11 months after Johnson was elected to the American presidency, and was ousted 14 months ago by Conservative Edward Heath.

For Wilson, the Texan was "a character, a very mixed character—he can be stormy one moment, then very friendly.

"But I think basically he was loyal to Britain and what we were trying to do. And if you had to appeal to him for help in a particular situation, you didn't have to appeal twice, once he understood the point," Wilson said.

The former prime minister said he was little bothered by American reliance on the pound as first line of defense for the dollar because Johnson realized "that if sterling reached an impossible situation, so would the dollar."

Scuba Divers Kill Sea Urchins

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (UPI)—About 1,000 scuba divers armed with hammers beat an estimated 800,000 spiny sea urchins to death Sunday in a county-sponsored "Operation Ocean Urchin Kill."

The Department of Parks and Recreation initiated the program after an urchin population explosion threatened the great undersea forests of kelp in the coastal waters which provide food and cover for thousands of fish.

The urchins are small sea creatures with a round body covered with sharp spines. In the past, sea otters ate the urchins keeping their numbers under control. But hunters almost have wiped out the otters, freeing the urchins to multiply. They thrive on sewage.

The postal service said the stamps will go on sale at its offices across the Nation Tuesday. Approximately 200 million of the stamps are being printed.

Couple Held For Liquor Thefts

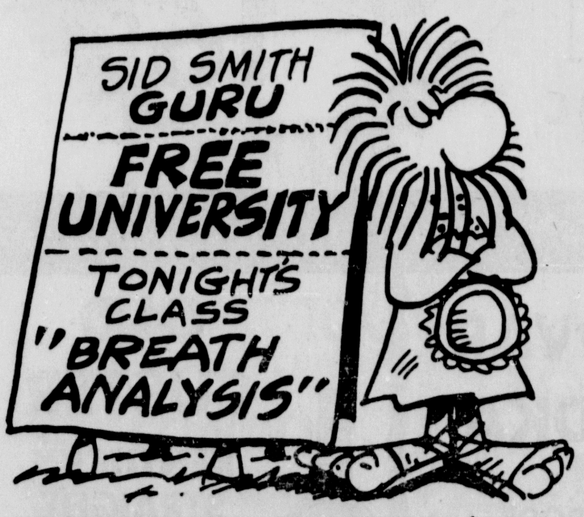

A Richmond man and an Oakland woman have been arrested on suspicion of stealing about $70 worth of liquor on two occasions from Guasco's Supermarket in San Anselmo, police said today.

Arrested Saturday were Eddie Lee Mitchel, 28, and Paulette Livingston, 23, after employees at the store declared them to be the couple that stole three bottles of liquor a week earlier.

Officers said they were stopped on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard at about 3:30 p.m. near Ross Hospital but no liquor was found. A check along Sir Francis Drake found five freshly shattered bottles of liquor.

They were booked into Marin County Jail where they remained in lieu of $2,500 bail each and were scheduled to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

$8 Hike Set For Newsprint By Zellerbach

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — A price increase of $8 a ton for standard 32 lb. and 30 lb. newsprint sold in the 11 Western states, Hawaii and Alaska was announced Friday by Crown Zellerbach.

The increase becomes effective Nov. 1.

The company said the new price would only partially offset the continuing rise in newsprint manufacturing, distribution and other costs which it has experienced for a considerable period of time.

The increase raises the price per ton of standard 32 lb. newsprint in the Western regional market from $155 to $163 a ton.

Secret Service 'Solves' Case Of Bogus $100 Bill

When is a $100 bill not a $100 bill? Apparently not even bankers or secret service agents can always tell.

The Marin County Treasurer's Office is not passing counterfeit money. The San Francisco secret service office has found that an allegedly bogus $100 bill paid to a Marin sheriff's deputy last week was actually genuine.

When Deputy Sheriff Wayne Wright cashed his paycheck at the county treasurer's office, the suspect $100 bill was among the cash paid to him. His wife deposited it at the Crocker-Citizens Bank in Petaluma and bank officials made a special check with the secret service since phony $100 bills were reported to be circulating in Sonoma County.

Ben H. Hunt, assistant vice president and manager, said the plate number on the bill was believed to be on the list of bogus money. On Thursday secret service agents returned the bill to the bank, declaring it to be genuine.

Yesterday the bank reimbursed the county for the $100 error and offered its apologies. The board of supervisors had agreed to reimburse the deputy for the phony bill.

AT HEADQUARTERS — After lookout Epstein radios a fire location, fire warden George Thornton fixes the site on a wall map and dispatches units from the county fire department's Woodacre headquarters. The department has 56 pieces of equipment stationed at scattered points.

FIRE LOOKOUTS

A Lonely Summer Vigil

From Barnabe Mountain, on the eastern fringe of Samuel P. Taylor State Park, Leonard Epstein can see clusters of homes, the fog-bound coast at Point Reyes National Seashore and the southern border of Sonoma County.

The scenery is breathtaking, but Epstein scans the countryside with more Care and patience than the casual sightseer. Epstein is a fire lookout, and his job is to spot that wisp of smoke that signals danger to him and scores of firemen keeping the vigil during Marin's long, hot and tinder-dry summer.

Epstein? together with his wife, Susan, join another couple stationed on Mount Tamalpais as fire lookout teams employed by the Marc County Fire Department during the summer. The department, preparing for the season in many ways, also hires 20 extra firefighters for the summer.

The Epsteins, joined by their 3-month-old son, Jesse, are stationed at the Dickson lookout atop Barnabe Mountain. Employed as lookouts at the Gardner station on Mount Tamalpais are Mr. and Mrs. Glen Saltau.

The Epsteins came on the job June 14, and it is his fourth year as a lookout. Epstein is a San Francisco State College student who uses the summer pay for his education.

"I like being left alone . . . " he said of the lookout work. "We have our own family life up here."

The Epsteins and Saltaus keep in constant touch with county fire headquarters in Woodacre. There, a huge wall map is used to fix the precise location of a fire from information supplies by both lookout stations.

Within seconds, trucks and men can be dispatched from various stations. The county department has 56 pieces of equipment and 40 full-time employees, many of whom started out as part-timers but stayed on.

Pedroli himself began as a part-time fireman at the age of 20 in 1949, rising to fire warden in 1962, assistant chief in 1964 and finally as chief this year when Louis Bloom retired.

In addition to hiring lookouts and extra firemen, Pedroli's department prepares for the summer fire season in other ways. Fire trails are graded and bulldozed and gates to the trails secured to minimize trespassing.

"We have a lot of trouble with vandals breaking the gates," he said. That brings another problem — ranching stock is let loose.

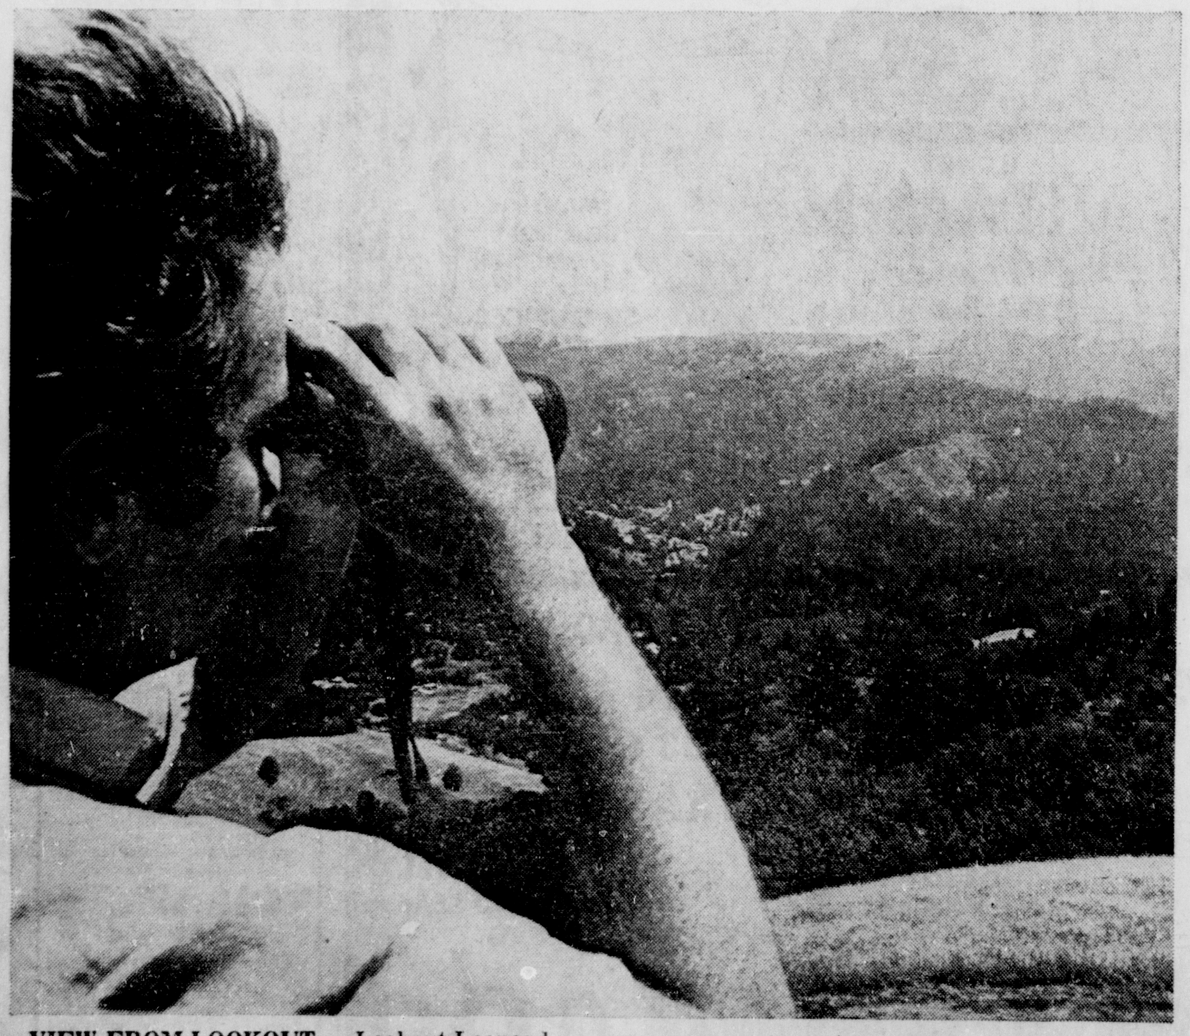

Pedroli blamed a small group of motorcyclists for much of the vandalism.

The department also assembled a new fire truck to augment its equipment for the season, buying a chassis and installing pumps, the pump engine and water tank on the vehicle.

The county fire department is responsible for an area of more than 267,000 acres, or almost two-thirds of the county. Its domain includes state parks, and the department is available for mutual aid calls as well.

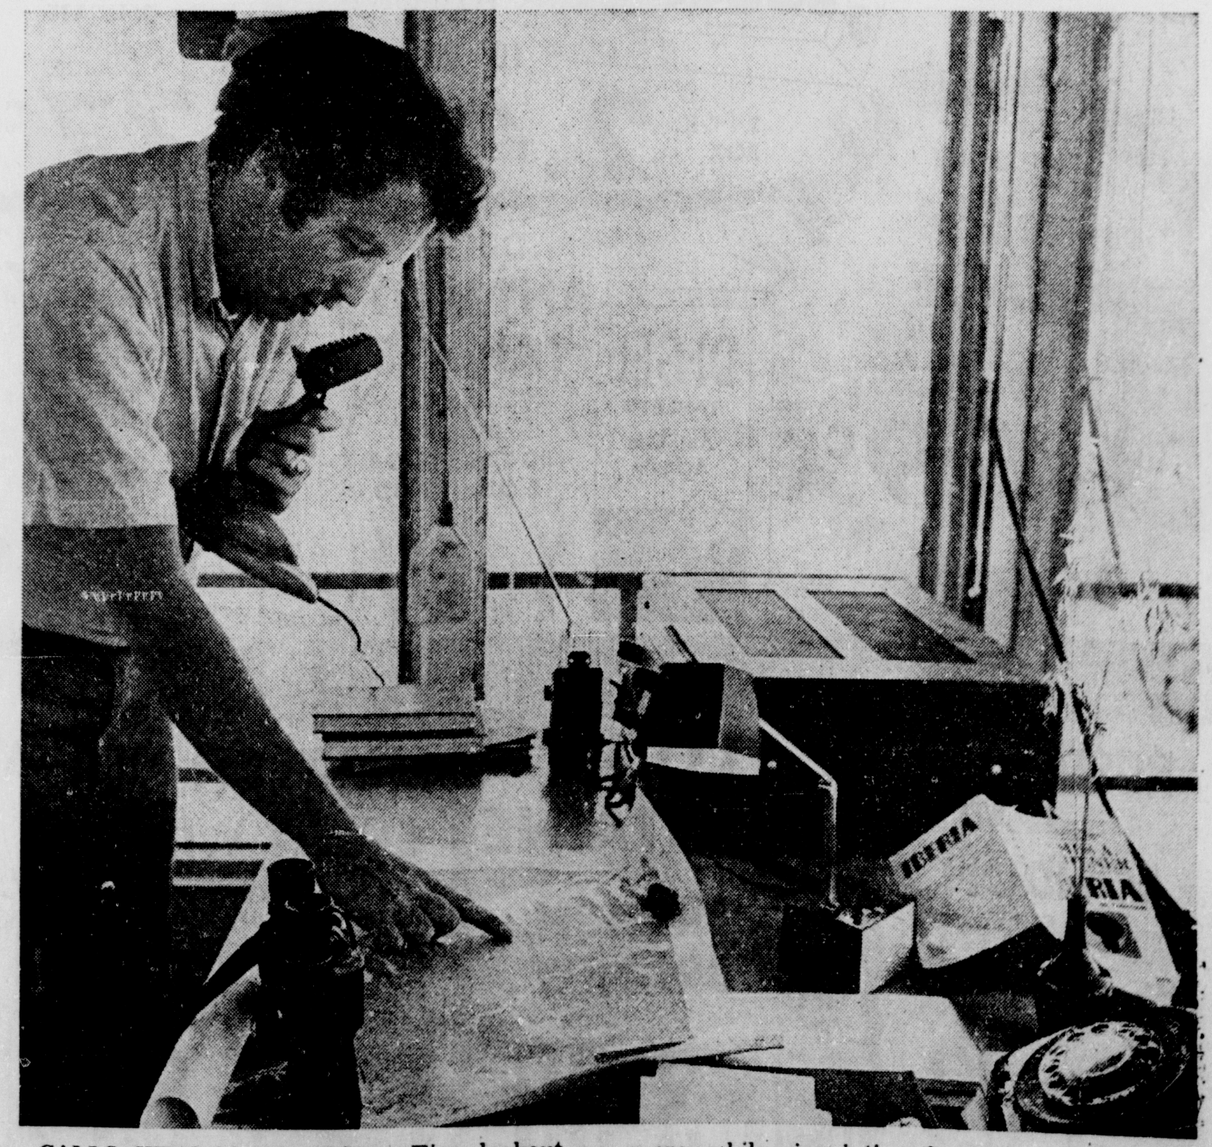

Trucks are kept at Woodacre, Marin City, Throckmorton Ridge, Point Reyes Station (where an ambulance also is housed), Hicks Valley, Tomales and Santa Venetia.

The men in Point Reyes also perform rescue operations — there were 12 last year — in addition to ambulance and fire duty.

VIEW FROM LOOKOUT — Lookout Leonard Epstein scans the hilly Marin terrain from his station atop Barnabe Mountain. This view is southwest, toward the Bolinas area. To the west, Epstein can see Point Reyes National Seashore and to the north, the ridges of Southern Sonoma.

CALLS HEADQUARTERS — Fire lookout Leonard Epstein radios the location of a blaze to county fire headquarters in Woodacre, while pinpointing the danger area on a map. Epstein has been a lookout in Marin for four summers.

51,000 See Billy Graham Finale

OAKLAND (UPI) —Evangelist Billy Graham drew 51,000 persons Sunday as young people swarmed to hear the minister close his 10-day youth oriented Northern California crusade.

The religious campaign attracted 376,200 persons to the Oakland Coliseum. Graham's messages ranged from "Jesus Freaks" to the coming of Christ.

The evangelist said biblical signs show the "coming is relatively near." Some of the signs were famine, earthquakes and pestilence, he said.

Graham, 53, said the number of earthquakes has increased recently, there is an increasing drug problem, and thousands of persons were starving to death.

"Christ will come and rule the world ... we will have everlasting peace."

Young people applauded when he said there would be no need for police and armies when there is peace.

"Loneliness is probably the foremost American illness among young people. Many psychiatrists agree to this. It is no respecter of persons as it devastates the young and the old, the rich and the poor, the educated and the illiterate, the famous and the unknown, the ghetto dweller and the suburbanite, and the farmer. It is getting worse every year," he said earlier.

One long-haired youth sitting in the upper deck of the coliseum said, "I have this awful feeling inside. Maybe it is loneliness, I don't know. But it is so bad that I decided to come here and see if this would help."

He said he didn't know if he would give himself to Jesus after the Evangelist spoke.

"I'll wait and see."

But Jeff Bowers, 17, of Saratoga, Calif., said he had found Christ and came to hear Graham for reinforcement.

"It wasn't a mountain top discovery," Bowers said. "It was a quiet thing. I found afterwards the floor was still cold when I got out of bed and my eggs didn't taste any better."

Statistics showed that the Oakland crusade may have attracted a record number of young people, said Crusade director Dr. Walter Smyth.

"This is a starting point," Smyth said. "Physical and spiritual birth are alike."

He was a passenger in a car going west on Lucas Valley Road west of Mount McKinley Road at 8:45 a.m. Saturday which was forced off the road by another unknown car, California Highway Patrol reported. Driver of the car, Manuel Fernandez, 30, of San Francisco, was not injured.

Ina H. Powell, 18, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut forehead and numerous scrapes. She was riding her bicycle at 2:30 p.m. on Shoreline Highway north of Panoramic Highway when it hit an embankment, according to patrolmen.

Raymond J. Kearns, 25, 1019 Young Court, Novato, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a cut scalp. He was southbound on Highway 101 at Rodeo Avenue at 11 p.m. Saturday when his car hit the embankment, patrolmen reported.

Catherine Christoff, 21, of Foster City, San Mateo County, was treated at Marin General Hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises. She was driving north on Highway 101 south of Rodeo Avenue at 10 p.m. Saturday when her car collided with one driven by Joan H. Campbell, of 37 Valley Road, Apt. C, Mill Valley, patrolmen reported.

Sisco, Israelis Agree To Another Round

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Assistant Secretary of State Joseph J. Sisco held another round of talks in Tel Aviv today with the Israeli leadership on the specifics of a possible agreement to reopen the Suez Canal. The only agreement reported was that they would meet again.

Sisco emerged unsmiling from the session with Prime Minister Golda Meir and key cabinet minister. The meeting was held against the background of a warning by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan that Egypt might soon despair of a settlement and start another war.

A communique issued at the end of today's talks said "the discussions continued in a practical, open and friendly atmosphere. More discussions will take place." It gave no further details.

Foreign Minister Abba Eban told newsmen, Those were good talks.

"I can't say anything, but they are not yet over. There will be further talks but the time, the place and the framework have not been set yet."

Israel newspapers said in talks with Mrs. Meir and Eban Friday Sisco urged Israel to be more flexible toward the reopening of the Suez Canal under a partial pace with Egypt. They said the Israeli leaders showed an inclination to do so.

The newspaper Ma'ariv said Sisco relayed a promise from Egyptan President Anwar Sadat that he would order 4,000 Soviet advisers out of his country if an interim settlement were achieved.

Dayan said in a television broadcast Sunday night that Israel should take seriously Sadat's warnings that Egypt cannot wait past 1971 for some kind of peaceful progress without having to turn to the military.

"This means if there will be no movement politically before the end of the year, Egypt will open fire somewhere in the next period," Dayan said.

Jet's Might Plus Crew Is Applauded

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The most serious accident in the jumbo jets' history came close to being a catastrophe, federal aviation investigators said Sunday.

It was only the strength of the plane and the skill of the flight crew that kept a Pan American 747 with 191 passengers aboard from cartwheeling into San Francisco Bay, the investigators said.

The jet was taking off Friday when it hit a row of runway lights while using a shorter runway than usual. One of the main landing gear units smashed through the bottom of the plane and 18 feet of steel bar from the light-pier ripped into rear passenger seats.

Of 29 persons examined for possible injuries after the landing, 12 were hospitalized, three seriously.

"If it had not been for the inherent structural integrity of the Boeing 747 and the fine performance of the flight deck crew, the accident could have resulted in major tragedy," said C. O. Miller, an official with the National Transportation Safety Board.

Captain Calvin Dyer and his crew of 21 kept the plane flying and the passengers calm, circling for two hours before making a dramatic emergency landing.

The aircraft was using a 9,500 foot long runway because the 11,870-foot strip normally used for transoceanic takeoffs was closed so a hole could be repaired.

Airport officials said the shorter airstrip was capable of handling jumbo jets and that about half the flights leaving the airport Friday were made from that runway.

Captain Dyer, a senior pilot with more than 20,000 hours of flying experience, changed wing flap and power settings because of the shorter runway, investigators said. He proceeded to takeoff but the liftoff came too late, they said.

Damage to the plane was estimated at about $2 million.

This was the first serious accident involving one of the $23 million, 400-passenger jumbo jets since they went into service 18 months ago, Pan American spokesman said.

Investigating teams are studying physical evidence and eyewitness accounts of the accident to find out how it occurred.

Formal Hearing Set On Budget

Lagunitas School District trustees will hold a required formal hearing on the district's 1971-72 budget at 7:30 p.m. today in the San Geronimo Valley Elementary School.

The tentative budget of $483,096 approved earlier is more than $57,000 larger than last fiscal year's $425,354 total. However, no change in the tax rate of $4.56 per $100 assessed valuation is expected, according to acting Supt. Harry F. Roche.

This is because the extra spending is offset by a mandatory increase in the assessment ratio from 23 to 25 per cent of fair market value of property.

The trustees also will discuss proposals for a security system for the school and hear a report on recruitment for a successor to former Supt. Joseph A. Amato.

Battered Body Of Attorney Is Found In Woods

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —The battered body of an assistant U.S. attorney was found Sunday in a wooded area with his throat cut and authorities arrested a man and a woman involved in an "escort service" on suspicion of murder.

The body was that of Michael Heuer, 35, assistant chief of the criminal division in the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles.

It was found wrapped in a blanket and hidden under brush in a ravine about a mile east of U.S. 101 in Ventura County.

Detecive Lt. Roy Salls said an anonymous tip led officers "right to the spot."

In custody were Gordon Yates, 36, and Katherine Lamb, 26, of the same addres in Hollywood. Officers said they believed Heuer picked up Miss Lamb Thursday on the Sunset Strip, a stretch along Sunset Boulevard between Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

Council To Study City Hall Plan

Plans for a new city hall will be considered at the Rohnert Park City Council meeting today at 7 p.m.

City Mgr. Peter M. Callinan proposed that land be purchased and an architect hired soo so that the new building may be occupied early next year. The Cotati School District has said it will rent office space in the development if the rental fee does not exceed $400 per month.

The council also will consider rezoning 12 acres on Commerce Boulevard at the Rohnert Park Expressway for a shopping center.

'Limited No-Fault' Insurance Worth Try

Auto insurance rates should go down next year in California if Assembly Bill 1505, which already has passed the Assembly, becomes law.

Also, claim settlements should be speeded up in most cases, and the backlog of auto accident damage suits in the courts should begin to decrease.

At least, these have been the experiences during the first few months of operation of a limited no-fault auto accident insurance law in Massachusetts, and the proposed California law contained in AB 1505 is modeled after the Massachusetts plan.

However, it is not really a no-fault insurance law. The key work is "limited."

THE BASIS of no-fault auto insurance is similar to that of fire insurance or workmen's compensation insurance: the insurance company that sells you the policy compensates you for your economic loss due to an accident.

The present system of automobile insurance, in all states except Massachusetts, is a tort liability system. You buy the insurance to protect yourself against having to pay for the economic loss of somebody else involved in the accident. Your insuranee company goes to bat for you against the other fellow's insurance company.

The exception is the collision damage to your own car. Your company pays for that — less the deductible amount — although it may also try to collect from the other fellow's company.

COLLISION COVERAGE would not be changed by enactment of AB 1505. But the rest of the coverage — medical and hospital costs, loss of income, and in case of death, funeral and burial expenses — no longer would be subject to the court process of trying to find who's at fault and collecting from him or his insuror.

Up to a limit of $10,000 per person per accident, these would be paid by the insurance company that wrote your policy, regardless of who was at fault in the accident. If you wanted to collect more for pain and suffering, inconvenience, etc., you would still be free to buy more insurance subject to the old tort liability system. But everyone would be required to carry the basic limited no-fault policy.

Although the big settlements make the headlines, most auto accident cases involve small settlements well below the $10,000 limit. None of these would go to court under provisions of AB 1505.

MASSACHUSETTS HAS had such a system in operation since Jan. 1. A sharp decrease in the number of bodily injury claims filed there has resulted, according to the state insurance office. And — of more interest to the average driver — insurance rates in Massachesetts have been cut 15 per cent while they have gone up 20 to 30 per cent elsewhere.

There are probably some "bugs" in the plan. It probably is not the ultimate answer to the problem of equitable protection for the motorist. But the limited experience in Massachusetts is good enough to make it appear worth a try.

It's up to the state Senate (and Gov. Ronald Reagan) whether it will get that try in California.

GOLDEN GATE VIEW

Behr Wins One Battle, But May Have Lost A War

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

Marin's state senator, Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, won a major political victory last week, but at a cost he may pay for a long time.

Behr's victory came in a 7-3 vote by the Senate Finance Committee to approve his bill to preserve the Eel, Trinity and Klamath as wild rivers. But to do so, he had to outmaneuver the chairman of the committee, Randolph Collier, D-Yreka.

The vote not only yanked the committee out from under Collier, but acutely embarrassed him with longtime backers in his own senatorial district. Collier is a political war horse with 33 years in the Senate to Behr's seven months, and belongs to the old school: don't get mad; get back.

The lumber industry, strongly opposed to Behr's bill, must have been especially distressed that their senator could not deliver his own committee's vote to kill the bill. The industry played a cool game during Senate committee hearings by fielding witnesses against the bill who were not identified with lumbering.

But the witnesses were flown to Sacramento each time in the industry's private planes.

BEHR DID NOT have to wait long to start paying the price for outfoxing Collier. "Object lesson No. 1" came the next morning, when Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr., D-San Francisco, summarily killed a Behr bill (SB 265) creating a statewide network of bicycle paths.

Brown, chairman of the ways and means committee, ruled that Behr did not have the votes needed to get the bill out of the committee. Brown did so without even asking for a vote or a motion on the bill, which has not had any opposition.

One member of the committee, Frank Lanterman, R-Pasadena, suggested a minor amendment that would have kept the bill alive, but declined to move it after Brown made it clear the bill already was sentenced to death. Bucking the chairman takes more guts than any member present was willing to show, although several of them later said Brown had acted unfairly.

Brown could have been acting on his own, but it seemed too much of a coincidence so soon after the Behr-Collier crunch the day before. Brown is an avowed admirer of Collier, and the chairmen of the fiscal committees in the twc houses traditionally swap votes to keep their bread buttered on both sides.

The bike path bill may be revived through the efforts of Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, but is is certain that Behr has not heard the last echo of his win over Collier.

IF BEHR'S wild rivers bill survives a Senate floor fight expected this week, it will still have to get through Brown's committee. Given Brown's handling of the bike path bill, the wild rivers bill seems headed for another tough fight.

Collier has his own version of how to deal with North Coast rivers in a bill calling for a $2 million study over the next 10 years. Both probably will go first to the Assembly Natural Resources and Conservation Committee before getting to Brown's committee, thus each senator will have a chance to kill the other's bill in an Assembly committee.

With the liabilities Behr picked up by besting Collier just once, Behr has nothing more to lose by pushing all the way for final passage of his wild rivers bill. The political rivers in Sacramento can be even rougher than the natural ones Behr is trying to save.

Wornum Opposed To Closed Meetings

Having been thoroughly castigated, I would like to make a brief statement. I assumed that the closed meeting of July 8 that our board had with the selection committee for a new county administrator had been duly noticed and was proper. I, therefore, attended. Feeling I was an innocent party, I was goaded to state that fussing about lack of 24-hour advance notice was stupid. That statement was even more stupid on my part, as I am strongly opposed to secret meetings and on rational reflection, believe that the 24-hour notice is a vital safeguard to assure that such meetings are set only for purposes required by law.

I won't go into the 1963 episode of closed meetings in Mill Valley while I was on the council, as it was thoroughly discussed at that time. We all learned our lesson, and in the two subsequent years in which I was mayor of Mill Valley, the Brown Act was punctiliously followed.

I repeat that I am against closed meetings and believe that the public business should be done in front of the public. At the risk of vanity being added to my other sins, I would also add that I don't even enjoy legally closed meetings, as I much prefer the attention and interaction of a live audience to my sometimes stodgy colleagues.

Are Stockholders Getting Fair Return?

One may look at the U.S.A. as a large business firm, with many stock holders. In this case the stockholders are the tax payers, you and I. So the other day when I read in the paper the price tag on this trip to the moon was $445 million, I sat down and asked myself some questions.

I guess in this case the chairman of the board would be the President, the board members would be the Senate and congressmen. So one mjght ask these questions: is this a sound and wise investmant at this time? How long will the stockholders have to wait for their return on this investment and will they be assured of a good return? Would it not have been wiser and more profitable to have spread such a large sum of money over a larger area of projects which would have benefited more workers? You see as a stockholder I feel I have the right to ask these questions; I want good answers, not hollow words and promises.

When I see our young people walking around on the street, no work, nothing to do, I am no crank. I am an ex-serviceman, in the first world War and in the second. I remember the lean years. I worked for 50 cents an hour doing whatever I could get to do. I will end by saying let's get on with it. The song "O Promise Me, O Promise Me" is fine for weddings, but I hardly think that if fits in here.

ROBERT J. PAULEY

Davis Case Interferes With Crime Followup

Last week we were burglarized. The local deputy sheriff came right out, took finger prints off articles handled, etc. The next day we went to the court building to get our fingerprints taken and to see an inspector. It took us most of the day and two trips to get the fingerprints begrudgingly taken - the Angela Davis trial was in progress. We never saw an inspector. I am not blaming the sheriff's department, they are overworked and understaffed at best. Does it seem right that there is no one to help us when our most valued possessions have been taken and we'll probably end up paying unknown higher taxes to assure a "safe" trial for Miss Davis (or the court she is in)?

By the way, in your full page advertisement of Marin County and all the cities therein you neglected to put any West Marin town in (Bolinas, Olema, Point Reyes Station, Inverness, Marshall, or Tomales). Was this a Freudian slip? The county administrators would often like to forget us.

New Category of Casualties In War In Southeast Asia

(Reprinted from St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

The tragedy of the American military involvement in Southeast Asia will endure long after the last soldier falls on the battlefield; it will remain not only in the history and spirit of the nation but, more visibly, in the bodies of veterans who have returned home with an addiction to heroin. These are the walking dead of this tragic war.

Estimates of the number of American servicemen addicted to heroin in South Vietnam range as high as 78,000, although a figure of from 30,000 to 40,000 is believed to be more reliable. In any case, the lower estimate is dreadful enough, and the rate is growing and will continue to grow as long as there are American troops in Indochina and as long as government officials in South Vietnam, Laos and Thailand are able to collect their profits from this filthy business.

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to define precisely the dimensions of the problem but some general statements may be made that will suggest the trouble that lies in store for this country. The government estimates there are 250,000 heroin addicts in the United States, and adding to this the number of troops who are addicted or will become addicted and the number of civilians who will begin using heroin, the figure of 300,000 American addicts by the end of 1972 may be conservative.

At a minimum of $30 a day, it will cost this addicted population $9 million daily to sustain its habit. Actually the figure will be substantially higher since Asian heroin is so much purer than the variety available in the U.S. that persons addicted in South Vietnam will require much larger quantities at home. Authorities also say that addicts who turn to crime must steal four or five times the cost of their habits to buy drugs and, using a government estimate that three quarters of those addicted will become criminals, the yearly cost of the heroin problem by the end of 1972 would be no less tha $9.9 billion. And again the true costs would be much higher since the 9.9 billion does not include the expense of treatment, rehabilitation programs or law enforecment.

AS A SPEICAL study mission of the House has noted, the production of white heroin, the type sold cheaply to GIs, is a recent development, one that has arisen "in direct proportion to the growing demand among Americans in South Vietnam." It is a bitter irony that those who grow poppies for heroin and those who traffic in the drug are the very people this country has continued to support as enemies of Communism: Laotian Army and government officials, South Vietnamese officials and Thai military personnel, to list a few.

Peace Moves May Return Nixon To White House In '72

WASHINGTON — There are three solid reasons why the peace issue may be the controlling factor in President Nixon's bid for re-election:

1. A study by Burns Roper of the 30-year record of political opinion polling shows that U.S. voters respond most decisively and most favorably to presidential initiative in foreign policy.

2. Nixon may well have much more going for him than his China initiative. The U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms talks are making significant progress. So are the negotiations over Berlin, and a Warsaw Pact-NATO security conference is in prospect. The point is that numerous peace-building opportunities are developing more rapidly than anyone expected and they may well come to fruition before the voting in 1972.

3. If some of the building blocks of a more stable world, involving all the principal powers, are beginning to be put in place, they can't be dismissed as "Nixon politics." They will be too visibly worthwhile for that description and, if successful to a reasonable degree, they will be too widely approved by the American people to be countered by partisan oratory.

WHAT I AM SAYING is that a productive journey to Peking by Nixon, while beneficial politically, would probably not be enough to elect him under adverse economic conditions. But a series of reasonably successful foreign policy initiatives could enable the President to overcome the handicap of a sluggish economy.

The Burns Roper discovery that presidental initiative in foreign affairs improves a President's approval rating far more than any actions in domestic matters is particularly pertinent. This strongly fortifies the prospect that the peace issue could be the deciding factor in the 1972 campaign.

Mr. Roper's researches into the ups and downs of poll ratings show that the presidential curve of approval usually rises substantially during international crises following strong action by a President. This was true for Truman at the start of the Korean war, for Eisenhower in the U-2 incident, for Kennedy in the Cuban missile crisis, and for Johnson in dispatching troops to the Dominican Republic.

The study also shows that Truman's standing zoomed upward with the enunciation of the Truman Doctrine for aiding Greece and Turkey and again with the announcement of the Marshall Plan. The same for Eisenhower after his "Open Skies" proposal at the Geneva summit and after his "Atoms for Peace" speech at the United Nations.

IN DOMESTIC affairs, presidential initiatives bring nearly the opposite results. Here is what Roper found:

"While a crisis in the international arena is likely to elicit approval, a crisis on the domestic scene is more likely to reflect discredit on the President. Truman found that out when he nationalized the railroads to settle a strike, and Eisenhower discovered the same thing when he sent troops to Little Rock, Ark."

THE RANGE OF PEACE developments which could come to fruition next year is considerable. All of these are possibilities bordering on probabilities:

An initial agreement with the Soviet Union limiting nuclear weapons;

The People's Republic of China a member of the United Nations and establishment of diplomatic relations with Peking;

No more Communist harassment of West Berlin;

New treaties of peace between West Germany and the Soviet Union and Poland;

Entrance of Britain in the European Common Market;

The emergence of Indonesia as a stabilizing force in Southeast Asia;

The end of the Vietnamese war.

This is the raw material with which a formidable peace issue can be developed in next year's presidential campaign.

Oil Drilling Presents New Threat To Everglades

By ERNEST B. FURGURSON

THE EVERGLADES, Fla. — Straight as a string, mile after mile, the Tamiami Trail aims westward. Off to north and south the saw grass savanna lies flat like a lake, and above it the thunderheads billow up one beyond the other with a perspective you see only in big country, in Texas or Spain or the Ukraine.

To whip through it at 55 m.p.h., you cannot tell unless you are well briefed that this unique piece of America is besieged and dying despite occasional temporary victories scored by people who can see beyond their dividend statements. And unless you are well-briefed, you will not know that the Everglades are far more to South Florida than a museum of rattlesnakes and alligators, a moneymaking tourist attraction and paradise for hunters and fishermen.

For the rest of the country, they are another kind of museum — a large-scale example of how the streams and forests are not mere playground for gun nuts and birdwatchers, but are also the natural machinery that makes man's life possible, and an instructive exhibit of how those trying to keep the earth liveable can never relax after turning back one challenge because there are always two more forthcoming.

ALONGSIDE the highway, between far-spaced souvenir stands and idle airboat concessions, runs the Tamiami Canal. It is one of many built in the Everglades for nearly a hundred years, most by the Army engineers. The canals make convenient fishing holes and boat trails but their main purpose is drainige.

Unfortunately, they work. Drainage has created land dry enough for ranching and housing development, and in turn these have created the demand for more drainage. The result is dangerous lowering of the underground water table that supplies the entire South Florida population; concentration of sewage and other pollution, and even a shift in the area's weather patterns.

At last, men of some muscle are alarmed. The flood control engineer admit there's overpopulation on the drained fringes of the Everglades. University specialists advocate halting further canal construction and filling in some already built.

AS THE ILLEGAL slaughter of alligators for their skin was at least slowed down, public outcry also halted completion of a giant supersonic jetport already begun in the Everglades.

So now the birds and animals are taking over the jetport site again, although the airstrip laid there continues to serve temporarily as a training facility for pilots learning takeoffs and landings and checking out in new aircraft. A mere $13 million was spent before building was stopped, and the Everglades can absorb that much concrete. Fear of development around the jetport, of inevitable incoming industry, is what brought the Department of the Interior finally to block its completion.

But these separate actions in the long-range interest of the larger public do not secure the Everglades against further shrinkage and exploitation. The problem, as elsewhere across the country, is knowing where to look for the next blow.

IN MOST CASES, the oil industry is a reasonable bet. That is the case here.

The state cabinet has given Phillips Petroleum the go-ahead to drill for oil in the privately owned Big Cypress Swamp along the Everglades' western border. The company's authority begins Sept. 1. Other companies are putting on pressure for permits to drill or explore elsewhere in the Everglades. And the federal government even indicates it will let the oil exploiters begin drilling in coastal waters along both the Atlantic and Gulf shores of the Florida Peninsula.

If any single business activity can be calculated to destroy the very natural blessings that have made Florida a boom state for half a century, this is it.

Yet unless the government acts with unaccustomed quickness on behalf of the public, the oil men will move in with their roads, trucks, platform rigs, towers and the other accouterments of profit — including spillage — which will be denied in advance and minimized after it happens.

THE ONLY RECOURSE is for the state and/or the federal government to buy up Big Cypress Swamp for park land now, before its selling price escalates still further into the kind of millions the oil industry shrugs at. And if that move somehow should take place in time, the public still will have to keep its guard up.

Even then, the exploiters are likely to be at work along the famous shores of this state, just as they continue at work in every state in the country.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By STEVE SWENSON

Bit Of 'Errorless' Reporting That Escaped Sports Section

Due to several "inaccuracies" by employees of the Independent-Journal, the San Rafael Police Department narrowly nipped the I-J band in the softball game last week, 19 to 9.

Some have said the I-J players lost because of too many errors. This is to be corrected. The San Francisco Giants make errors — journalists do not make errors; they are simply inaccurate at times.

The police, flailing baby blue nightsticks (suspected bats), hit the ball in the wrong places and scored many unearned runs. The runs were so unearned they approached larceny as defined in section 484 of the California Penal Code.

The score might have been worse had not an I-J booster, acting in moral dignity and good conscience, refused to give the police some of the runs they said they scored.

THE WAY the police hammered hits past innocent I-J fielders, ran shamelessly around the bases and scored run after run against the I-J good guys (in white hats) was a clear case of police brutality.

Adding insult to injury, Inspector G. R. Green prepared a crime report describing the I-J players under the heading of "victims" as 9 WMA's, plus substitutes, softball players(?), journalists. The "suspects" were nine policemen accused in the report of demoralizing and devastating the victims by beating them with bats, base running and fielding.

The I-J players did have a few bright moments as Frank George smacked two home runs, Dave Einstein blasted a triple, and Kevin Brown, a P. K. (publisher's kid), knocked another triple. Another I-J super star exploded a tremendous home run but he is too humble to note it in his own column.

Some policemen hit home runs too, but it is impossible to tell who was who because they all look alike.

DESPITE LOSING the softball game, the I-J staff impressively guaffed more beer than their upstreet competitors.

The I-J has wisely refrained from publishing the results of the game earlier for reasons twofold: the game does not come under the area of news "that is fit to print," and the San Rafael cops slaughtered us. (Reasons not necessarily in order.)

Some might say this is not objective reporting. Not true. Had we reported it, it would have been objective (a good reason not to report it).

The I-J players have no grudge against the San Rafael police. After the game we gave them the cheer, "two, four, six, eight, who do we appreciate?" One of our players softly said "the police" while other players quietly meditated appropriate synonyms.

Nixon Sets New Record For Running U.S. In Red

By MICHAEL L. POSNER

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon has become in 2 1-2 years the biggest spending President in history, and is well down the road to running up more government debt than any other administration except during World War II's last days.

In the two fiscal years of budget managing, though, Nixon has run up actual deficits that add to government debt of $43 billion.

On paper Nixon is able to paint the picture a little brighter. He uses a budget system that counts borrowed money from Social Security trust funds as revenue—instead of the borrowed money it is.

UNDER NIXON'S way of figuring, his 1970 deficit was $2.8 billion and the fiscal 1971 deficit for the year that ended July 1 was $23.2 billion. The real deficits, counting the debt the government will have to pay back to Social Security, are $13.1 billion and $30 billion.

The $30 billion deficit for 1972 is higher than any since World War II. Only during those war years did debt run higher. Even so, FDR only spent $303 billion in four years to finance the defeat of Nazi Germany and Japan.

In fairness to Nixon, government spending will continue to go up. But deficits don't have to. Economists and lawmakers disagree on the extent to which deficits should continue to climb.

NIXON HAS TALKED government spending restraint since his 1968 campaign. Just this Wednesday he urged fiscal responsibility as "absolutely indispensable" in a talk before lawmakers.

Paradoxically, the President's latest plea for frugality came at the same time the Treasury made public the "official" 1971 budget deficit of $23.2 billion, which House Appropriations Committee chairman George Mahon, D-Tex., points out is really more than $30 billion— since the government actually has gone that much into debt.

Mahon's other committee, the Joint Committee on Reduction of Federal Expenditures predicts Nixon's deficit for this year, ending next July 1, will be $21.3 billion—using Nixon's way of figuring—or $31 billion, counting all money the government must borrow.

If those predictions come true, Nixon will add $73 billion or more to the national debt through deficits in his three years of running government budgets.

ALL THIS is a far cry from Nixon's campaign remarks. "I would hope we could spend less and get better results," Nixon said in October, 1968.

"In fact the U.S. has not had a balanced budget since the last full fiscal year of the Eisenhower administration," Nixon said Oct. 23, 1968. "The total deficit since then and through the current fiscal year will have reached nearly $70 billion. This is the cause of inflation and a major cause of our current frustration.

"The total deficit run up in the budget of the Johnson years will amount to more than $55 billion," Nixon said July 31, 1968. "The massive deficit has wracked and dislocated the economy; this massive deficit has plunged the free world monetary system into a profound crisis of credibility."

Youths Held In Boat Pilferings

Two Mill Valley teen-agers were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall Friday on suspicion of pilfering equipment from boats docked at San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere.

Officer James Moulder arrested Don Lind Koski, 16, of 17 Sky Road, and Dale James Thomson, 15, of 44 Miller Avenue, about 2 a.m. He said the boys were found in the parking area with a portable television set, a transistor radio, a radio transmitter and receiver, and a stereo piled near their motorcycle.

The television and the radio equipment came from a boat owned by Richard Jacoby of San Francisco. Officer Moulder said the other equipment came from other boats and from a mobile home on Blanding Lane.

Angela Davis' Mother To Talk In Marin City

Sallye Davis, mother of Angela Davis, will speak in Marin County Sunday at 11:15 a.m. at the St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church in Marin City.

According to Rev. James Symons, Mrs. Davis will answer questions about the trial of her daughter and related issues.

She will be accompanied by Miss Davis' defense lawyers who will answer legal questions.

Mrs. Davis has been on a national speaking tour on behalf of her daughter, who is charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in the Aug. 7 Hall of Justice shootout.

Firm Vandalized In San Anselmo

Vandals have shattered three plate glass windows and a glass door at Tamalpais Electric Co. in San Anselmo.

Harlan Schoff, manager of the store, discovered the damage Saturday morning. No projectiles were found.

It was the second time in a month vandals have struck at the store, which is at San Anselmo and Belle avenues. A month ago, a projectile believed to be a bullet shattered a window.

Until the first incident, the store advertised in the Independent-Journal, Schoff said, but has not done so since. Numerous I-J advertisers have been vandalized since the typographical union strike began in January 1970.

An average of 560 people live in each square mile of the United Kingdom.

65-Foot Fall Kills Climber

MT. RAINIER NATIONAL PARK (UPI)—One man was killed and another was injured Sunday as they fell 65 feet into a crevasse near the summit of Mt. Rainier.

Michael A. Ferry, 24, Seattle, was skirting around a crevassed area with five other climbers when he fell to his death. Ferry's rope partner, Lawrence Sligar, Edmonds, Wash., fell into the crevasse with Ferry early Sunday morning, park rangers said.

Other members of the climbing party extricated Sligar and moved him to Camp Muir at 10,000 feet, where a helicopter from Ft. Lewis evacuated him to Renton Valley General Hospital, where he was reported in good condition Sunday night.

Rangers said Ferry's was the first climbing death on Mt. Rainier this year.

SENIOR GIRL Scout Lois Kazakoff of Corte Madera displays the "swaps" she accumulated on a hiking - camping excursion on the shore of Lake Superior. Lois made redwood badges, representing Marin County, as her exchange items for other Girl Scouts she met on the trek through Minnesota and Canada.

Girl Scout Represents Bay Area On Expedition

By BETTY FROST

Scouting is a way of life in the Kazakoff family of Corte Madera.

Lois Kazakoff, 18 has just returned from a 500 mile hiking-camping expedition on the shores of Lake Superior, undertaken as the representative of the San Francisco Bay Area Council in the national opportunity program of the Girl Scouts.

Her brother, Jim, 15, was one of the 36 Marin Boy Scouts who left last week for the 13th international scout jamboree in Shizuoka Province, Japan.

LOIS REMINISCED about her recent adventure as she prepared slides to share with other scouts. She is also writing a journal about the outing.

"Five hundred miles is a long way," she said. "Actually there were seven patrols, each assigned to a section of the 500 mile route through Minnesota and Canada." Lois was one of 11 girls, accompanied by an advisor, who hiked, "mostly along the Trans Canada Highway" from Nipigon, Minn., to Terrace Bay, Ontario.

"According to the pedometer one girl wore, we traveled 137 miles," the Senior Scout said. "We spent ten days, but could have easily done it in seven," she related. The girls took time out to see points of interest and spent two days visiting a "wonderful Canadian family".

EIGHTY GIRLS from 25 states and Canada went on the excursion.

How was Lois selected? Girls who are interested in the more than 20 national opportunity programs offered to Senior Girl Scouts each year, may make application. Those who have applied spend a weekend participating in panel discussions in their districts.

This screening determines which of the programs would be a good fit for the applicant. Lois was selected for the hike from Hoveland Bay., Minn., to Terrace Bay after an additional detailed application had been acted upon by the national organization.

A JUNE graduate of Redwood High School, Lois will enter the University of California at Santa Cruz in the fall. She has been in scouting 11 years, will continue for at least two years, while at Santa Cruz.

With the big excursion over, one might think that the rest of the summer would be a quiet one for Lois. Not so. She leaves next week for a month of travel by rail in Europe with Sue Desmond, a Redwood High School classmate, also of Corte Madera.

Advice On Milk

Teen-agers need the protein, minerals and vitamins provided by the equivalent of at least four cups of milk every day. This milk may be used as a beverage or mixed with other foods.

WOMEN'S LIB?

Bathing Suits' Progress Cited

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—They don't talk about it at women's liberation meetings but one of the greatest blows struck for feminine freedom began with bathing suits. It even predates women's suffrage in 1920.

Consider the progress of the diminishing swim suit — an all wool worsted swim suit introduced in 1915 weighed eight pounds when wet. Today, Rudi Gernreich (he of topless fame) has the bikini down to one ounce of nylon.

THE BATHING suit world hu had its "feminists" too — to name a few, Annette Kellerman, Brigitte Bardot and Pegy Moffit, although none considered themselves outright pioneers for beach rights.

The Australian-born Miss Kellerman, a swimming and diving champion, jut wanted a suit that would give her more speed in the water Her father designed a sleek, one-piecer for her. She first appeared in it around 1910.

According to press reports of the day, the Kellerman suit (it still covered the legs) was a shock greater than the bikini 37 years later and as controversial as the topless more than half a century later.

KELLERMAN SCANDALIZED a nation used to its ladies in "wading" costumes covering them from head to foot and cumbersome enough to drown the wearer had she gone in deeper than the ankles.

Kellerman started the take-it-off. But it took World War II to give the new freedom a giant boost. Wartime curtailment of elastic yarns put designers to work to make the most of what they had — and so the two-piece suit with wide expanse of middle showing.

Brevity became the password and these suits made way for the French bikini first spotted in 1947. It appeared on the Mediterranean beaches and photographs of actress Brigitte Bardot wearing it undoubtedly helped to earn her the "sex kitten" monicker.

ONE WONDERS what would have happened had Rudi Gernreich been designing in 1910. As it was, in more "liberal" 1964 (by this time the bikini was acceptable) Gernreich's topless set off an international ruckus.

The topless was photographed (with mostly back and very little front showing) on gernreich's brunette model Peggy Moffitt. Again, consternation!

The Pope denounced the nudity. The mayor of St. Tropez (famous for its daring in beach aparel) ordered helicopter parols to keep wearers in some sort of tops. Ministers denounced Gernreich from the pulpit, but Gernreich recalls that he sold 3,000 of the style anyway.

Other than the Kellerman startler, the first major change in bathing costume from the pantaloons and overskirts of the 1880s and '90s came in 1915, when Jantzen introduced an all-wool worsted knit. The style was sleeveless, with a deep V-neck, apron skirt, but still worn with black stockings. That suit, using two yards of heavy material, weighed eight pounds when wet.

The next breakthrough was the knitted rib stitch in 1917, made on the same machine that knitted snug cuffs for sweaters.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Columnist Defends Herself On Replies To Serious Letters

DEAR "HELEN KNOCK US":
That should be your name!

Trouble people have the courage to write you their problems and I have yet to see one letter that you have answered in a nice way. All you do is downgrade and brush them off.

I suppose you won't print this because someone is putting you down, but that just proves you're afraid of the truth. Or else you'll come back with a smart crack.

Why don't you write long, serious answers that really tell people what to do? Humor has no place in an advice column! — ALL FED UP

DEAR AFU:
Had you cnlosed your name and address, I'd have sent you a long personal reply, proving with examples that I never take troubled correspondents lightly, but. . .gosh, how I welcome humorous-type questions which shout for quips and one-liners.

Why don't I write "long, serious answers that really tell people what to do"? Even if space permitted, I'd balk at boring readers and "playing God." A counselor doesn't "tell people"; she tries to make them think for themselves.

Now, friend, isn't it just possible you've formed a preconceived notion, based on what you've read and heard about other newspaper "advisers"? Perhaps my "fast" answers jump out and grab you, while my lengthier discussions — well, two dozen lines of solid print are a bit much for some people. (Besides, you've got this image of me. Why read yourself out of it?)

So often we see only what we're looking for — and that goes for the next letter too; which makes me feel guilty because I suspect I don't fit this image either, though I wish I could!

DEAR HELEN:
I have enjoyed your very warm and understanding compassion toward human problems. . .I'm so thankful for your humor and your witty, pithy remarks, as well as your empathy and almost uncanny way of getting to the heart of the problem in a few words — making your readers think you're the kind of person I've always wanted to be, and I wish we had you for our next-door neighbor. Our whole family considers you a personal friend, though we've never met you. — D.S.C.

DEAR D.:
Thanks, pal. I needed that!!!

And I'm so glad your letter came in the same mail with "Fed Up's" diatribe, because it offered an excuse fo printing a bouquet. (I hardly ever do, unless my much-appreciated fan proves a point about human nature.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:
Since it appears most smut advertising is "legal" now, how can we keep pornographic mail from arriving at our house? — DISGUSTED

DEAR DIS:
This kind of "literature" must be so designated on the outside of the envelope. To keep it out of your house, complete Postal Service Form 2201 now available at your local Post Office, and your name will be added to those not wishing to receive advertisements defined as "sexually oriented."

I'm hoping for the day when lists grow so long that smut dealers write off direct mail ads as unprofitable. . . .And when that happens, hard-core-pornography may also go out of style at movie houses and adult book stores! With exploitative sex-after initial shock and voyeurism — what is there left but sheer boredom? (Note I said "exploitative") — H.

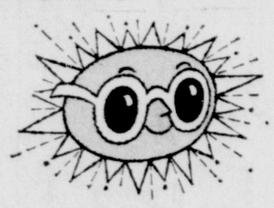

PERSONAL TO "APPREHENSIVE": No, you are not legally required to put "Sex Oriented" on the envelopes of letters addressed to your boy friend. This isn't advertising. . . .or is it? — H.

Flashcard System For Younger Set

The parent who wants to teach the pre-schooler how to read now can do it with an adaptation of the flash-card technique. The manufacturer of the "at home teacher" says two to six-year-olds can learn reading with only 10 minutes a day 'playing" with the cards.

For instant, the word "finger" on a flash-card is accompanied with parent (or grandparent) showing the toddler a finger, the word "hand" is "accompanied by holding out one hand, and so on." The maker says the game has educator-developed instructions and has had a thorough market testing.

SMART SHOPPER

Price Is The Key, No 'Brand' Gas

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — "When you buy gasoline at the service station under a brand name, there is no assurance that this gasoline was refined by the oil company under whose name it is being sold."

That statement sums up testimony presented at the first days of the current hearings beng conducted by the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee on gasoline marketing practices.

It was made by W. Morris Akin, director of the Texas region for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union. Akin made the comment in a letter to an investigator for the Center for Science in the Public Interest. The letter was submitted by a spokesman for the Center.

AKIN WENT on to explain that oil companies use common pipelines and terminal facilities, often swapping gasolines, in distributing the fuel to the retail service stations. The net result, he said, is that gasolines rarely have any significant difference between brands.

All refineries use one of two pipelines transporting gasoline to the East Coast and intermediate points along the way from Texas and Louisiana. At the terminal, the gasoline is then sold to any oil company that wants it.

This means that the gasoline that is sold by Texaco, for example, may have been refined by Mobil, or vice versa. Each company may then add special chemicals which they are advertising at the time, such as Shell's TCP2, but few do so, according to testimony at the hearings.

UNDER QUESTIONING by Subcommittee Chairman Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), top officials of some of the largest oil companies in the country admitted that they use the same basic products and swap shipments from time to time.

According to Akin, "it is not uncommon to see tank trucks from four or five different oil companies loading gasoline from a particular refinery terminal, oftentime all out of the same tank." He said some refineries in the Southwest sell gasoline to different companies for marketing under each company's own brand name.

Several oil company officials conceded that the only significant difference between gasolines occurs at the refinery where regional conditions are taken into account. Temperature and other atmospheric patterns determine the basic formulation for all gasoline sold in each region.

Gasoline also varies in quality because of changes in weather conditions and other factors even from the same refinery from day to day, according to oil industry witnesses.

ONE COMPANY president (Ashland Oil Co.) admitted that chemical differences were greater within the firm's own branches from region to region than among competing companies in the same region.

What this means is that people in the same region are likely to get the same gasoline, with rarely the slightest chemical difference between brands, but that gasoline does vary significantly between regions.

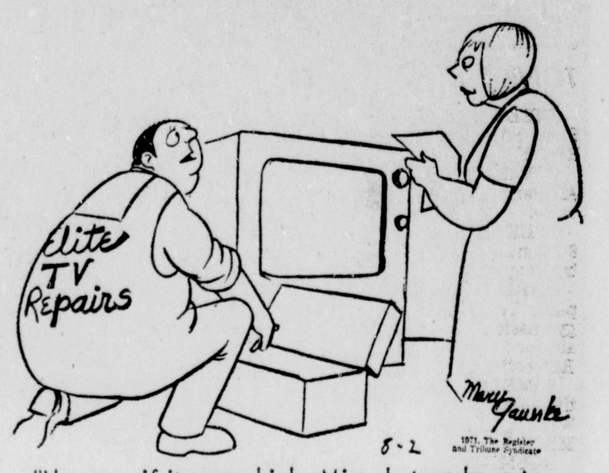

What this means is that people in the same region are likely to get the same gasoline, with rarely the slightest chemical difference between brands, but that gasoline does vary significantly between regions.

It also means that the only real difference may be in the price.

The most important factor, of course, is the grade. Many motorists continue to cling to the notion that even if their car's engine is tuned to use regular grade, that using premium grade will improve engine performance.

If you are one who does this, here is a way to save two to three cents per gallon. Almost all cars manufactured in the last two years are designed for regular gasoline.

THE ALUMNAE

"I'm sorry if it seems high, Miss, but we have to eat, too, you know."

Sam Contino Weds Joanne Marie Sullivan

Joanne Marie Sullivan and Sam Henry Contino were married Saturday at noon at St. Anselm's Catholic Church in San Anselmo.

Jeanette Sullivan of Kentfield was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Joanne's sister, Laurie Sullivan of Kentfield, and Sam's sisters, Toni, Chris, Kathy and Phyllis Contino, all of Laguna Beach.

Best man for his brother was Mike F. Contino of Laguna Beach, and guests were ushered to their seats by the bride's brother, Jim Sullivan of Kentfield, and Jack Broussard, Les Hamlin, John Dykzell and Tom Cain, all of Pasadena.

A reception at the Meadow Club in Fairfax followed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent J. Sullivan of Kentfield and the granddaughter of Mrs. James Sullivan of Kentfield.

Dr. and Mrs. Raymond M. Contino of Laguna Beach are the bridegroom's parents. He is a graduate of the University of San Diego and is attending the University of South Carolina College of Dental Medicine in Charleston, S.C.

The couple is on a wedding trip to their home in Charleston and will stop in Corpus Christi, Tex., and New Orleans, La.

Having trouble with pulled-out seams? When a seam splits, tears, or just plain gives out, usually the main cause is that the garment is already too close-fitting. Stitch the seam together again, giving the garment as much extra fabric as possible. Then turn your garment inside out. On the underside of the seam, lay a piece of narrow matching tape. Stitch this carefully on both sides of the seam so that the garment looks right on the outside.

SUITS

By this time, ladies' knees were bared but belowcalf matching stockings still were worn. The weight of the suit was down to 13 and one-eighths ounce, using one and one fourth yards of fabric.

Women's "dressmaker" suits came along in the 1930s, very feminine styles with shaping to the body through darts and seams and use of colorful florals and geometrics for fabric. These continued into the 1940s, until the man-made fabrics came along — and brought strapless tops and boning in bras. As one ad said, "A suit to make the most of what a girl's got . . . or finesse what nature forgot."

It was the age of the deep back-plunge and the Betty Grable-type pinup pictures to send to the fighting men overseas.

The 1950s brought in lighter elasticized and stretch fabrics and a one-piece sheath in latex-acetate-cotton weighed 11⅝ ounces and used one and one-fourth yards of fabric. A two-piecer took three fourths of a yard and weighed eight ounces.

They called the 1960s the era of "the bikini explosion." This briefest of all suits (except the topless) finally spread from the Mediterrannean to the Caribbean and Hawaiian resorts and then on to the mainland, first in private pools and then public.

NEXT PRODUCTION

Festival Actor Turns To Role Of Composer

By JEFF GREER

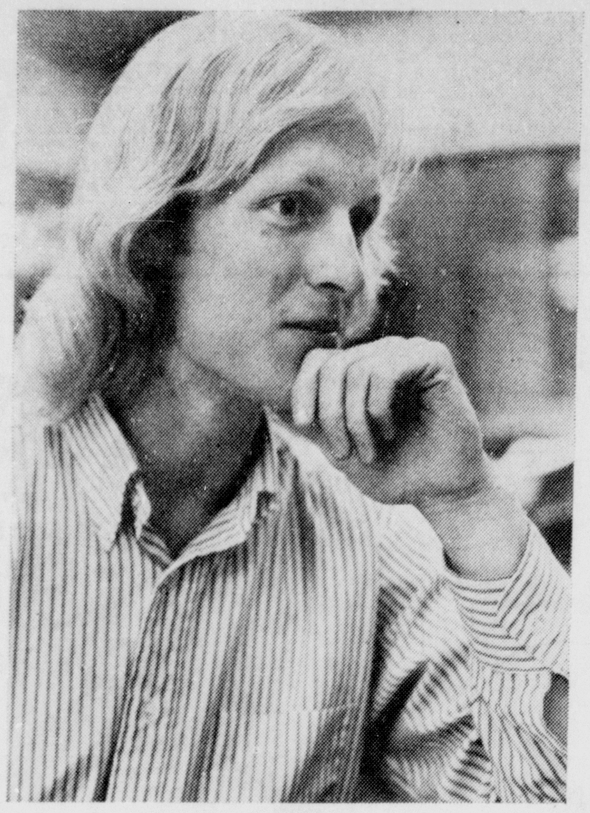

Marin Shakespeare Festival audiences who have seen Jim Mairs onstage this season and last will be exposed to two new dimensions of his talents Saturday.

That's when the troupe will premiere its production of "Wind in the Willows," at 2 p.m. in Forest Meadows Theater, San Rafael. Mairs wrote the score and played several instruments for the taped accompaniment to the musical, which is based on A.A. Milne's "Toad of Toad Hall."

Onstage, Mairs will portray Rat, whom he describes as "gergarious, sensitive, kindly — and wavering."

Mairs began writing music to go with Kenneth Grahame's dramatization of "Wind in the Willows" two years ago, before he first joined the Marin Shakespeare troupe. He recalls playing some of the songs for director John Brebner during a party last year "before I ever had any idea we'd be doing it here."

"When I found out we were going to do it and I was to do the score, I wrote in another song for Rat," he said.

JIM MAIRS
Composer, musician, actor

Mairs stressed that he sought to avoid creating a score in the tradition of most American musicals. "There is an overture — but it's more to set the mood than to give a taste of each of the songs," he explained. Since the play is essentially a children's story designed for reading aloud, his overture is "a tone poem to give a feeling like a child being tucked into a blanket before listening to a bed-time story."

"The overture does have an old round I came across, called 'Wind in the Willows.' The cast sings it softly, as if it were in the distance," the 21-year-old composer-actor said.

Mairs's songs for the leading roles in "Wind in the Willows" don't attempt to link each character to an individual theme. The tunes, however, do use different instruments for each song to some extent, he explained. "For instance, one song is scored for mandolin and piano. Alfred the Horse sings accompanied by banjo, guitar and cowbell."

Mairs said he drew on the Hidden Valley Music Seminar on the Monterey Peninsula for help in scoring the play's finale for instruments with which he was unfamiliar — trombones and other brass.

Mairs himself plays piano, guitar, mandolin and banjo. He said some of his songs were created at the piano, some on guitar, at least two as he was whistling.

"I tried to keep it all very light and fun — in line with the book," Mairs said. "No Hollywood garbage."

Mairs is a recent graduate of the theatrical program at the University of California at Los Angeles. He wants to continue diverse development both in music and study of acting, and hopes to continue professional acting after the Marin season ends.

"I was a physics major my first two years in college," he said. "One night I was walking to the lab when I saw a notice for auditions for 'West Side Story.'" He said he watched others try out with no intention of performing himself, but "finally I realized I was the only one there who hadn't auditioned, so I did. I got myself a part, sort of out of embarassment!"

Since then, Mairs related, he usually finds himself "playing the boy next door — the good guy. But I'd like to play a villain — Iago, or Calaban. That's about as far from the boy next door as you can get."

Mairs said he cherishes his membership in the Marin company. "There are so few places where you can do Shakespeare. He was a genius for comedy as well as for substance," he said.

On the other hand, the Shakespeare Festival's current production of "Once Upon a Mattress" is "all nonsense and fun," Mairs said. He plays Prince Dauntless the Drab in the farce. He said he believed the Marin group must offer such fare "to keep alive, I suppose," in terms of box office.

He said "Wind in the Willows" will challenge the actors to create humanized animals, rather than humans wearing bits of animal costume, all the while keeping a sort of British flavor to the performance.

"Rat wears a dark nose — but a full British moustache instead of whiskers," he said. Toad wears a sort of hood, long flipperlike hands — and traditional old-school garb with striped blazer.

Mairs said he tried to compose the music with the same restraint. "What they're singing is more important," he said.

The play will be offered at 2 p.m. each Saturday in August and September, with evening performances Sept. 1, 2 and 5.

Marine Sets World Record For Sit-Ups

HONOLULU (UPI) —A 30-year-old Marine captain did 40 sit-ups a minute thie weekend — for seven hours and 27 minutes nonstop — a world record.

"I'm getting a little hungry," Capt. Wayne E. Rollins, Ellooree, S.C., said Saturday aftr completing 17,000 sit-ups. He was only fed four small chunks of watermelon while exercising.

Rollins did 11,100 sit-ups June 25, thinking the record was 11,000 set by a Russian. After learning from the Guiness Book of Records that an FBI agent did 15,100 sit-ups in 1966, he decided to try again.

Saturday, observed by four soldiers with stop watches, Rollins set the new record. His proud wife, Gwen, said she does 500 sit-ups herself every other night.

"It's nice if you and your husband do something together," she said.

Colonel Finds Body Of Son, 9, After 18 Days

SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (UPI)—An army colonel, after 18 days of searching, found the body of his missing 9-year-old son during the weekend in a wooded glen of this Redwood-studded park.

Col. Edward Holtz, Los Angeles, was hiking with his son, David, July 13 when the mentally-retarded lad became lost near the Dorst Creek campground.

Intensive searching by nearly a dozen rescue parties, including a 100-man Air Force team, failed to locate the boy. Late Saturday, Col. Holtz and a friend, Bob Allen, found the youngster's body in Coloney Meadows, only two miles from where he vanished.

"The boy apparently died from natural causes—exhaustion and exposure," park spokesman Jim Hartzell said Sunday.

A plastic fishing tackle box carried by the boy was found Friday and this prompted Col. Holtz to search in the direction of Coloney Meadows, Hartzell said.

Library Union Asks Work Halt

BERKELEY (UPI)—The Library Employes Union ordered its members today not to report for work at Berkeley's public libraries.

The union is seeking to negotiate a first labor contract with the city, covering its members.

Starting pay for librarians is $4.51 an hour and a master's degree is required.

Flood Zone Tax Plan Worked Out

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney has drawn up legal language to give unincorporated areas of Ross Valley reasonable assurance that their flood control zone tax rate can be held at 5 cents.

Maloney will suggest to the Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow some new legislation that will permit the formation of a zone for the sole purpose of maintaining flood control facilities. Under present legislation, flood control zones can make capital improvements as well as maintain existing facilities.

With the new legislation, Ross Valley Flood Control Zone 9-A (the unincorporated areas of Ross Valley) could be designated a "maintenance" zone, with voters having the power to prevent the zone from raising the tax rate above 5 cents. This legislation would apply only to Ross Valley Zone 9-A.

Ross Valley Zone 9-A is part of the larger Ross Valley Flood Control Zone 9, which covers the entire Corte Madera Creek watershed from White's Hill to the bay at Greenbrae.

About a year ago, the unincorporated areas like Sleepy Hollow, Kentfield, San Quentin Point, and outskirts of Fairfax and San Anselmo formed zone 9-A to do minor creek cleanup work in unincorporated areas without involving the cities at all.

Views On Recreation Area Due Tomorrow

Marin County Planning Director Werner von Gundell will give his views on the proposed Golden Gate National Recreation area tomorrow morning before the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

The Golden Gate National Recreation area is proposed by Rep. Phillip Burton, D-San Francisco in House Resolution 9498. It would create a national recreation and open area from Fort Funston to Olema.

The supervisors' all-day meeting will begin at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Other Items On The Agenda Include:

HIGHWAYS — Supervisors will oppose a move by the State Division of Highways to delete Shoreline Highway (from Highway 101 to Point Reyes Station) from the state highway system.

LIBRARY — Forest Knolls residents will oppose the proposed closing of the Forest Knolls branch of the county library.

CONCERT OPENING — The purchasing agent will recommend that Thomasser and Associates of San Francisco provide champagne and buffet at the Sept. 25 opening of the Veterans Memorial Building for $6,000.

BEVERAGE CONCESSION — The county administrator will report that Tamal Foods Inc. of San Anselmo; the Civic Center Caterers, who operate the cafeteria; and the Marin Economic Opportunity Council are interested in operating a beverage concession at the Veterans Memorial Building.

CHICKEN RANCH — Larry Marks Jr., who owns about 10 acres on the west shore of Tomales Bay just north of Golden Hinde Boatel, offers to dedicate a stretch of Chicken Ranch Beach for public recreation if he is allowed to build 15 apartments on the property.

CLAIM — Andre Brisebois of Quebec, Canada, will present a $200,000 claim against the county, alleging he was beaten up inside the Marin County Jail on April 30 this year.

MASS ARRESTS — Marin County Bar Association will submit preliminary plans on how it hopes to aid the administration of justice in case of mass arrests in the county.

HOWARD JOHNSON — A public hearing will be held on a complaint by Robert Burton of Mill Valley that the design of the Howard Johnson restaurant and motel buildings near Richardson Bay Bridge deviate from the master plan.

SUGARMAN — Richardson Bay Sanitary District will protest Dr. George Sugarman's plan to build five apartment units on 19,500 square feet of land on Tiburon Boulevard between Bayvista and Blackfield Drives.

WEST MARIN PLAN — Hearings will be held to repeal the West Marin Master Plan, which calls for 1.15 units per acre density, and to impose a one-year interim zone which would put minimum density at one-half unit per acre.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION — SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1971 — 17

LEAVING MARIN — Dr. Festus O. Adebonojo pauses to reflect on the years spent in Marin and the reasons for leaving. The need for doctors is far greater in Philadelphia, the problems to be overcome most serious, he says. And there is a chance there to learn while serving.

Creation Of Park Area Clears First Marin Test

Planning Panel Attaches List Of Seven Conditions

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A bill to create a Golden Gate national recreation area today won unanimous endorsement from the Marin County Planning Commission.

Seven conditions, however, were attached by the commission to its recommendation. The recommendation will go before the Board of Supervisors at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The recreation area, proposed in various forms in three bills pending in Congress, would include some 16,000 acres in West Marin and surplus federal land in San Francisco. The recreation area would provide public open space in an unbroken sweep from the Golden Gate to the Point Reyes National Seashore.

The conditions asked by the commission as amendments to whatever federal bill is finally drawn dealt with access to the recreation area, a mini-bus system within the area, visitor facilities, preservation of agriculture, tax relief, appointment of a citizen's committee and the boundaries.

The commission said the county's major concern will be handling the millions of visitors expected to visit both the recreation area and the seashore. Without definite provisions in the bill for a public transit system, the commission said, the county would face "the destructive environmental impact" of freeway and highway development for the visitors.

Commissioners also recommended a system of minibuses or similar vehicles to link trailheads and scenic areas in the recreation area and the adjoining parks. Auto travel within the recreation area should be restricted, the commission recommended.

The legislation also should be amended to provide for the lease of some public land to private developers for campgrounds and visitors facilities, the recommendation said.

Commissioners, noting that existing agricultural uses in the area were compatible with most recreation uses, recommended that the legislation permit agricultural and grazing uses by leasing back these areas to ranchers.

Citing the impact of the seashore on the property tax base, the commission urged that the federal government provide funds to the county and local tax districts affected by purchase of private land for the recreation area.

To clarify boundaries, described only generally in existing bills, the commission said sufficient land area should be excluded from the recreation area to allow Stinson Beach "to become a viable community." Referring to H.R. 9498 by Rep. Philip Burton, D-Fifth District, the commission said all of the land in the Olema Valley should be included in the recreation area. Burton's bill would exclude from the recreation area a narrow sliver of private holdings between the seashore and shoreline highway.

The commission also objected to Burton's proposal to include only a portion of Olema within the recreation area. The entire village should be included or excluded, but in any event should be designated as an historic district "and zoned and protected accordingly," the commission said.

The commission agreed with the provision in Burton's bill to exclude Bolinas Lagoon from the recreation area. Another of the pending bills, one by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-California, would include the lagoon in the recreation area.

Marin County Parks and Recreation Director Pierre Joske said that inclusion of the lagoon within the recreation area could weaken control the county wants to maintain over the lagoon.

Finally, the commission asked that the legislation provide a citizens advisory committee. A majority of its members should be from Marin and San Francisco, the commission said.

The commission's recommendation dealt only with the Burton bill, because the commission's staff was unable to obtain copies of those by Cranston and Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District.

The vote was unanimous by the six commissioners present, although Commissioner George P. Leonard complained that the recommendation stressed county objections too strongly.

"It's just a question of strategy," he said.

Leonard, who owns large holdings around Stinson Beach, most of which would be included in the recreation area, said the legislation was "the best and last chance" to get West Marin's open space preserved by the federal government. Objecting primarily to the tone of the conditions attached to the commission's recommendation, Leonard said "if I were a congressman, I'd say 'to hell with Marin and let's not do this.' "

A public hearing on the proposed recreation area will be held in San Francisco at 9 a.m. next Monday in Room 1194 of the State Office Building, 455 Golden Gate Avenue, by the House Interior Sub-Committee on National Parks and Recreation.

San Rafael Man Dies In 2-Car Crash

A 30-year-old San Rafael man died yesterday of injuries suffered in a two-car crash in Tiburon Saturday night. Five other persons were injured.

Kenneth S. Wynn, of 255 Channing Way, died at 7:25 a.m. at Marin General Hospital of head injuries received in the accident 14 hours earlier. His wife, Antoinette, 24, was treated at the hospital for a cut forehead, then released.

Two passengers in the Wynn auto, Dorothy Cichan, 21, of Oakland and Steven Islavia, 26, of Mountain View, were reported in fair condition today at Marin General, Islavia with possible internal injuries and Miss Cichan with possible back injuries.

Tiburon sheriff's deputies said the Wynn auto was traveling east on Tiburon Boulevard about 5:20 p.m. when it was struck from the side by an auto which entered the boulevard from San Rafael Avenue.

Driver of the second car, Gilbert M. White, 27, of San Mateo, was reported in good condition at the hospital today with multiple rib fractures. A passenger in his auto, Steven Kennedy, also of San Mateo, was treated at Marin General for possible broken ribs.

Deputies, who had no further details of the crash, said investigation was continuing today.

Wynn was the 22nd person killed on Marin highways to date this year, as compared to 20 killed in the same period last year.

FEELS 'REDUNDANT'

Pediatrician Accepts More Challenging Post

By MARY BURNS

The need he seeks to fulfill and the challenge he seeks to meet is in Philadelphia, not in Marin. Dr. Festus O. Adebonojo has decided. And so, on Friday, the pediatrician and his family leave for Philadelphia.

The 40-year-old African doctor will be assistant professor in the University of Pennsylvania Medical School and coordinator of a free clinic for ghetto children, staffed by 45 pediatricians, nurses, dentists, social workers and community organizers, and funded by the federal government.

Dr. Adebonojo said recently that the announcement of the upcoming move has been greeted by "ways" from people who think Bay Area ghettos should provide him a sufficient sense of commitment.

He explained that he wanted, simultaneously, to return to academic medicine and to work in the ghetto. "I investigated possibilities in the Bay Area, but there were no such opportunities. "Besides," the doctor added, "you're dealing with sheer numbers in Philadelphia. There are more people and few doctors than here," he said.

Dr. and Mrs. Adebonojo, who live at 2 Toyon Drive, San Anselmo, with their three children, camt to Marin County seven years ago. He is a member of the Permanente medical group. She is a former professor at Dominican College. For five years the doctor was on the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council and was chairman of the body for one year.

Adebonojo said he often felt "redundant" in Marin County. "I have asked myself, 'what is a man like me doing take care of wealthy children — a black man with the opportunities I've had?' "

When he decided to change his direction he began shopping around for avenues. His shopping included sharing his dream with a Philadelphia friend, who is also associate dean at the university.

The medical problems that he and his staff will face in Philadelphia's South Street ghetto are legion, the doctor said. They include "misinformation, malnutrition, anemia and poor academic achievement among children related to health. Services in this area are usually not available and when they are, they are very sporadic.

"One of the big problems among children is lead poisoning. They live in houses not fit for animals. Many of the old houses have been painted with lead-base paint and hungry children, with nothing else to eat, will eat the paint."

The doctor added that drug addiction has begun to claim younger and younger victims, now reaching 10 and 11 year olds.

"The problems are paralyzing if you think of them as problems, but they have to be tackled. I don't want to give the impression that I'm a Don Quixote going to tackle the windmill. But these problems must be tackled by someone."

Eventually Adebonojo would like to return to his native Lagos, Nigeria. Although he has been in America for almost 20 years, he is still, in spirit, an African, he says. His family did return eight years ago but left in the face of the Biafra-Nigeria crisis.

Adebonojo was educated — both pre-med and medical studies — at Yale University. He says with deep conviction "I had certain advantages. And the people who gave me advantages would expect me to give them back — by helping somone else."

Hearing On Election Plea Opens

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — National Labor Relations Board hearings opened here today with a request from San Francisco Typographical Union 21 that an election be held to determine who shall represent Independent-Journal composing room employees.

The morning session before hearing officer Gerald C. Shafer was taken up primarily with procedural matters for the hearing expected to last three days.

The hearing is to determine who may vote and who may not in an election which the union was required by law to request in order to substantiate its claims to representation of I-J workers and the right therefore to conduct a strike.

Norwin S. Yoffie, general manager of the I-J and first witness called, said the newspapers refuses to recognize the union until such an election is held.

Usually elections involve voting by both striking and nonstriking shop employees.

Yoffie remained on the stand most of the morning session giving a detailed history of the strike as it relates to hiring of composing room employees.

Under cross-examination by union attorney Duane B. Beeson, Yoffie described the duties of employees hired after the strike began Jan. 7, 1970.

The thrust of Beeson's questions was to determine which employees held supervisory positions and could not take part in any representation election.

In answering Beeson's questions Yoffie delved into the changeover in composing room equipment from "hot metal" to cold type and how the changeover affected employees.

The hearing was to continue this afternoon following noon recess.

Sausalito Trustees To Eye Budget

A proposed $1,173,675 budget for 1971-72, approximately $155,000 less than the current year's spending program, will be the subject of a public hearing before the Sausalito School District Board at a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. today in Bayside School.

Following the public hearing, trustees will adopt a final budget which will include a $61,389 expenditure for administration and a sharply-reduced $568,156 instruction budget, including $35,332 in salaries for two principals. Last year the district spent $765,430 for instruction.

Other budget items: $68,117 for plant operation; $55,690 for plant maintenance; $44,058 for transportations; $88,448 in fixed charges; $25,067 for food services and $96,687 for capital outlay.

The spending program, which will bring the district's annual cost per student to about $1,600 per year (current cost is $1,950 per pupil) includes a $125,590 undistributed reserve fund, according to Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg.

Lindberg said the proposed budget will cut the district's total tax rate by 33 cents, from $3.35 to $3.02.

The school board will also select board committees at the meeting and consider adoption of an updated board policy manual and meet in closed session to instruct its negotiator on salary negotiations with employee associations.

Angel Island Reopens Ahead Of Schedule

Angel Island State Park reopened yesterday after being shut down for two days because of a leaky pipe that cut the water supply.

Chief Ranger Kenneth J. Huddleston said a lighter than normal turnout of 1,000 people visited the park yesterday, it having previously been announced the park would be closed till Tuesday. A breezy wind kept the temperatures in the mid-60's for the visitors.

Elsewhere in Marin, a heat wave prevailed with temperatures of 97 in Novato, 95 in Woodacre and 88 in San Rafael. Even usually cool Sausalito jumped up to a balmy 85 degrees.

The park had been closed since Thursday because of a rupture in a water main which serves three families in Ayala Cove, the island's major use area.

Repair crews had a hard time locating the source of the rupture because water mains snake between the foundations of many of the old buildings, long since torn down, in the Ayala Cove area on the north side of the island, Huddleston said.

State park hours are from 8 a.m. until sunset.

Larkspur Council To Eye Underground Utility

The Larkspur City Council will take up formation of an underground utility district when it meets at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Larkspur City Hall.

The proposed district includes approximately 500 feet on Magnolia Avenue at Dougherty Drive. The undergrounding will be done in conjunction with changing the signals.

The council will consider adopting an ordinance changing the council meetings from twice a month to once a month and allowing the council to meet some place other than the city hall. The present ordinance requires meeting in the city hall, according to City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst.

Other items to come before the council include charging $5 encroachment fees for driveways, increasing the sewer connection fees from $125 to $250 per single family home, receiving a report on animal control from John Gill of the Marin County Humane Society and a report on the cease and desist order of Sanitary District 1.

Food, Cash Thefts

Food valued at $30 and $50 in cash were stolen in a burglary of a delicatessen at 15 Calle Del Mar, Stinson Beach, last Wednesday, Marin County sheriff's office reported today.

Two Teens Booked For Burglary

Two Connecticut teen-agers have been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall in connection with the burglary of a Stinson Beach service station Friday.

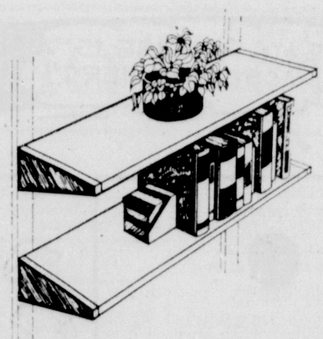

Marin County sheriff's deputies said Christopher Shanahan and Jalal Ziyadell, both 17 and from New Haven, were arrested in Bolinas about 10:30 a.m. Friday when they reported to deputies that their car had been stolen.

The car had been abandoned shortly after midnight Friday during a burglary of a Chevron service station at 3501 Shoreline Highway, Stinson Beach, deputies said.

Two young men fled from the service station — leaving their 1949 Cadillac with Connecticut license plates behind — when residents of a nearby tavern saw them pumping gas into their car at the closed station, deputies said.

Today is Monday, Aug. 2, the 124th day of 1971.

The moon is between the first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Supiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Leo.

American playwright Marion Crawford was born Aug. 2, 1854.

On this day in history:

In 1958 Boston and New York installed the first street letter boxes for the collection of mail.

In 1934 Adolf Hitler proclaimed himself Germany's absolute dictator upon the death of President Paul von Hindenburg.

In 1939 Dr. Albert Einstein wrote President Franklin D. Roosevelt, warning that German scientists were trying to find methods of turning out an atomic bomb and urged the U.S. to start at once. Roosevelt followed Einstein's advice.

In 1968 a major earthquake hit Manila, killing 307 persons.

A thought for today: French writer Francois Rabelais said, "So much is a man worth as he esteems himself."

Belvedere Due Council Session

Citizen complaints of sewer odors at Beach Road and Bayview Avenue will be considered by the Belvedere City Council when it meets at 8 p.m. today at city hall.

According to City Mgr. William L. Cavalli, the odors could be coming either from a break in a private sewer main near the intersection or a city-owned main.

Also on the agenda is adoption of the $498,738 city budget for 1971-72.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Strict Code Is Applied In Judgments On Bridge

In the outside world you tend to judge people by what they do. In the world of bridge you apply a somewhat stricter standard: you judge people not only by what they do but also by what they don't do. This sounds rather cruel, but we must remember that bridge players were not put in this world to enjoy themselves.

LOW HEART

West opened the six of hearts, and East won with the eight. After some thought East shifted to the ace of clubs, on which West signaled enthusiastic encouragement by playing the ten of clubs.

East thought some more and came to the correct conclusion that his partner not only had the king of clubs but also had the missing heart. If West had started with a singleton heart he would not signal for a club continuation.

East obediently continued with the queen of clubs, and South ruffed. South was Los Angeles expert Meyer Schleifer, who is an amiable man but is quite willing to judge his fellow bridge players.

REVEALING SILENCE

It was quite clear that West had the king of clubs. The question was: Which opponent had the king of spades?

The answer came not from what anybody had done but from something West had not done. West had passed over three diamonds and again over four spades. He would not have kept silent if he held two kings opposite a forcing two-bid and a very strong rebid. Surely West would have bid five hearts or would have doubled four spades.

LOW SPADE

After coming to this conclusion Schleifer led a low spade to dummy's ace since there was no advantage in taking a finesse when West couldn't reasonably hold the king of spades. As it happened, the king of spades dropped, and now Schleifer had an easy time making his doubled contract.

DAILY QUESTION

As dealer, you hold:
♠ - Q 8 7 6 3
♥ - 7
♦ - A K J 6 4 2

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid one diamond. You are a trifle light in high-card strength for an opening bid, but your unusual distribution more than makes up for this weakness. You expect to bid and rebid the spades after opening in diamonds, thus showing six diamonds and five spades.

Hearing Due On Head Start Issue

The Marin County Board of Education, meeting today at 8 p.m. at the district office in Corte Madera, will hear a progress report on transferral of the county's Head Start program back to the Marin County Economic Opportunity Council.

The EOC demanded the program back after some parents complained they did not have enough voice in its operation while under the county school office.

The board also is scheduled to enter closed session with its negotiating team to discuss employee salary demands.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Study Shows Some Who Nap Get 'Recharge' Within Minutes

Many people take naps if they have the time. This may explain why siestas are popular among very young children and the elderly. Many mothers insist that the preschooler take a 2 p.m. snooze because if it is missed, the tot is noticeably irritable by evening. Dr. G. S. Tune, a British investigator, asked 40 men and women in each of six decades to record how often they managed 40 winks during an 8-week period. Forty per cent of those in their 20s took one or more naps per day, and 80 per cent of those in their 70s did so.

IN ANOTHER STUDY in which continuous brain wave tests (electroencephalograms) were made, siesta time was definitely of shorter duration among oldsters. The same test also showed that the quality of sleep among oldsters is poorer than that among younger persons.

These results tend to refute the old theory that the older person sleeps in the afternoon to make up for what he missed at night. However, there is no evidence that our senior citizens do a good job catching up on lost sleep.

ON THE OTHER HAND, nothing is more refreshing than the nap of a young or middle aged person who is exhausted. Ask any intern or physician who is on call day and night. He dozes in a chair while waiting for dinner, or when visiting. Often he sleeps so "hard" that his batteries are recharged within minutes. In addition, these individuals accumulate a "debt" that makes them sleep longer than the normal person when they finally take a vacation. Many years ago when I had an active practice, I went on a vacation and slept two nights and a day because of exhaustion.

It is not difficult to remain awake for one night. Losing eight hours does not mean, however, that a person must sleep 16 hours to make up the deficit. A good night's rest usually balances the slumber ledger.

New dimension to the news

Are you aware of it? The new journalism which reports not just the facts but also their meaning? is the new dimension of "depth" which heightens your understanding. Daily in the I-J.

More important than any event is its meaning. Especially today when the news involves dynamic changes in our society.

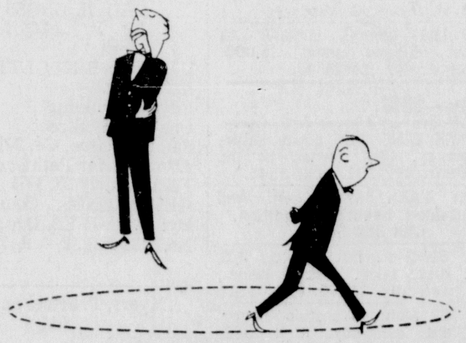

To bring you new perspectives on events the I-J presents a continuing train of articles, special reports and features which explore today's issues in depth. They go behind the "what" to the "why" . . . reports on ecology, revolutionary tactics, education, college unrest, the drug scene, the political spectrum, to name a few.

This kind of investigative reporting is the new dimension to the news . . . an attempt to go beyond the "shock" of events to their meaning. When you understand what you know you've gained perhaps the finest "dimension" of all—wisdom.

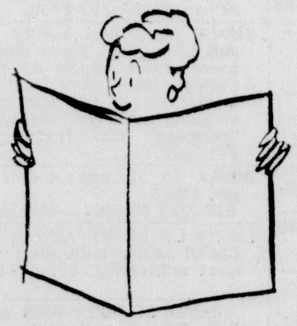

And who is overburdened with that?

NEW CONCEPTS OF THE ENVIRONMENT

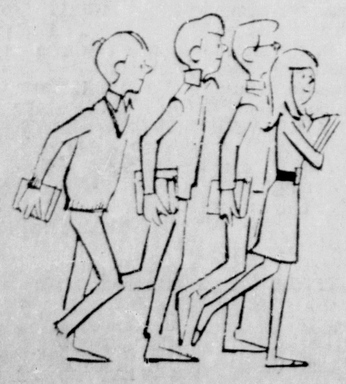

THE IMPLICATIONS OF REVOLUTIONARY TACTICS

THE DRUG SCENE IN TODAYS SOCIETY

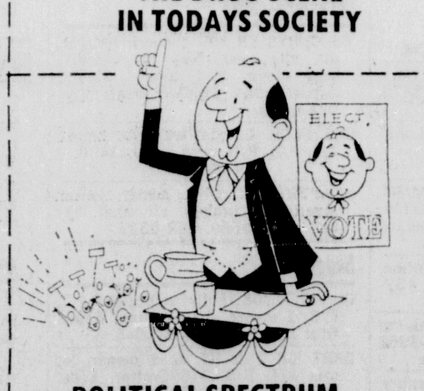

THE CHALLENGES TO EDUCATION TODAY

THE BUSINESS CYCLE

POLITICAL SPECTRUM IN THE U.S.

Uncertain Fate For Tunney Bill

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.) is remaining tight-lipped over a report that Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Maine), chairman of the Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, is dragging his heels on legislation that would get tough with water polluters.

It is considered a politically sensitive matter because Muskie, frontrunner for the Democratic Presidential nomination, has built a reputation as a leader in the field of anti-pollution legislation.

Muskie's aides deny the senator is trying to water down Tunney's proposals. They say he simply is giving them careful consideration.

All of this is going on behind closed doors as the subcommittee attempts to write water pollution legislation. It may be another week before a report is issued.

Tunney and his aides refuse to say exactly what he has proposed. A comparison with the final bill as it comes out of the subcommittee would reveal any compromises forced by Muskie. It is known, however, that Tunney opposes any compromise.

Basically, Tunney's amendments would set a minimum water quality standard for almost all of the nation's waterways. The standard would go into effect in 1976, with special cases receiving extensions up to 1980.

One of the toughest aspects of Tunney's package is a requirement that industries, and municipalities prove that they are not polluting lakes, rivers and streams. Presently, it is up to government agencies to prove that pollution is occuring.

Muskie has been criticized by Environmental Action, a conservation lobby, for allegedly failing to support Tunney's amendments. A spokesman for the group said Muskie "should have proposed these tougher standards, but instead it took a freshman senator to propose them."

An aide to Muskie said his lengthy study of Tunney's amendments was solely to determine if they would achieve the goals sought by the Maine senator.

"We're concerned, for example," said Leon Billings, Muskie's subcommittee aide, "that with the possibility of so many exemptions the way the (Tunney) legislation now stands, it might not be meaningful."

Muskie, who normally is a cautious and private legislator, was reported to have been furious over leaks regarding his subcommittee's deliberations.

ANGELA DAVIS DAY

Auto Stolen

His 1967 blue Volkswagen, valued at $1,600, was taken between 9:45 p.m. Friday and 12:10 a.m. Saturday from in front of 825 Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael, Henry P. Bowen of Fremont reported yesterday to San Rafael police.

No Funds To Pay The Bills

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI)—The state of Pennsylvania, victimized by conflicts among squabbling politicans, lost its legal power to spend money for the second time in five months.

A $160 million emergency appropriation ran out at midnight Saturday. The state was unable to pay its bills today. Gov. Milton J. Shapp asked state employes to continue working without paychecks, and state suppliers to continue delivery without payments. A similar fiscal crisis occurred briefly in March.

State legislators, returning to their desks here today, appeared ready to pass an $83.4 million stop-gap appropriation to carry the state through Aug. 15.

But Gov. Shapp said: "Even if there were another stop-gap appropriations bill available, I would not sign it."

"I have said consistently I will not tolerate the crisis-to-crisis operation of state government which was the hallmark of the previous administration," he said. "Those makeshift methods of financing drove the Commonwealth to bankruptcy."

Shapp's threat to veto a stop-gap appropriation was seen as another attempt to force the legislature to pass a state income tax.

For the entire nine months of his administration, Shapp has been fighting for such a tax. One tax proposal was rejected by the state legislature. Another was invalidated by the state supreme court. Now the legislature has before it a 2.5 per cent flat income tax proposal, designed to meet the courts' rigid interpretation of Pennsylvania's constitution ban on a graduated income tax.

A badly divided Democratic delegation in the state's lower house refused to deal with either the income tax, or Shapp's proposed budget, until the legislature passed school subsidy increases. But they could not agree on what kind of increases they wanted.

The state Senate has already passed by one vote a trimmed version of Shapp's budget, despite anguished objections that the senators were thus forcing themselves to pass his income tax. But any additions by the House for school subsidies would require the Senate to pass the budget again.

Dave Kingman Is Newest Of Young Giant Heroes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dave Kingman is finding it a bit difficult to believe.

"Here I was in Phoenix last Thursday and I didn't have the slightest idea I might be called up," Kingman said Sunday after his second and third big league homers in his fourth game carried the San Francisco Giants to an 8-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates and a doubleheader sweep. The Giants won the opener, 11-7, on some timely hitting by a couple of older heroes — Willie Mays and Willie McCovey.

"I felt right along," Kingman said, "that I might be called up for the last month because I was hitting pretty good at Phoenix, but I never expected the call now and when it came I figured they would keep me on the bench for a while so that I could get my bearings."

The Giants called up the 6-6, first baseman-outfielder-pitcher who starred at the University of Couthern California, on Friday morning and he filled in for McCovey Friday night and made a star defensive play as the Giants beat the Pirates, 5-2.

Stewart Wins In Germany

ADENAU, Germany (UPI) — Jackie Stewart, the diminutive Scot with the "heavy" accelerator foot, today held an almost unbreakable grip on the world drivers championship for Formula One cars.

The 32-year-old Stewart virtually clinched the prestigious title Sunday when he scored a runaway, 30-second victory in the German Grand Prix.

Stewart pushed his electric blue eight-cylinder Tyrell Ford around 12 laps of the 14.2-mile Nuerburgring in a record time of one hour, 29 minutes, 15.7 seconds, finishing several hundred yards ahead of teammate Francois Cevert of France.

In scoring his fifth grand prix victory of the season, the "Flying Scot" averaged 113.5 miles an hour over the twisting course.

"The car went well, the tires went well, the track was super. I just can't say enough," said an ebullient Stewart after the race.

The victory gave him a total of 51 points in the drivers' competition. Jacky Ickx of Belgium, whose Ferrari spun out of Sunday's race during the second lap, is second with 19.

A's Take Two, Stretch Lead To 12½ Games

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—The Oakland A's are offering American League playoff and world series tickets with a full page newspaper advertisement that warns "the A's offer no guarantee that they will be participants in either the playoffs or world series games —however we are quite optimistic."

The front office's use of the word "optimistic" is certainly an understatement. In fact, nothing could be better for Oakland.

The American League West division leaders polished off Cleveland, 7-3 and 4-2, in a doubleheader Sunday to move 12 1-2 games in front of second-place Kansas City. And tonight the A's can make things even better when they open a two-game series against the Royals.

After the set with Kansas City, Oakland returns home Wednesday night to host Milwaukee.

A's third baseman Sal Bando was quoted as saying before the current road trip if Oakland returned home with a double figure A.L. West the race "would be all over."

In Sunday's opening game, a three-ru homer by Gene Tenace and five-hit pitching by Jim Hunter was enough to stop the Indians, cellar dwellers in the A.L. East.

Hunter, who had lost five of his six previous starts, struck out six and walked one in posting his 13th victory against 11 losses.

Oakland jumped on Cleveland starter Steve Hargan in th opener for three runs in the first inning on singles by Rick Monday, Reggie Jackson, a passed ball and Angel Mangual's two-run single.

Monday, who hit two home runs Saturday, belted his 13th in the second inning in the first game.

In the second contest, the A's John Odom registered his sixth win against seven losses, though he needed relief help from Darold Knowles in the eighth and Rollie Fingers in the ninth.

The Indians took a 1-0 lead in the third inning of the finale, but the A's chased starter Vince Colbert in the fourth on

Novato Li'l Leaguers Win

San Rafael 6-1 Victim In Title Go

By PAUL CANE

Some experts say that pitching is 80 per cent of baseball, and the Novato National Little League All-Star squad proved it Saturday afternoon before a capacity crowd in Larkspur, as big Kurt Sears pitched his northern Marin teammates to a 6-1 victory over San Rafael American in the Marin County title game.

Sears, a 135-pound 12-year-old, stunned the San Rafael All-Stars with an incredible fastball, striking out nine and allowing only three hits for the six-inning junior league distance.

In the Consolation final game earlier in the day Twin Cities took third place in the Marin County tourney with a 2-1 win over Hamilton-Loma Verde.

Novato, although outweighing the smaller San Rafael team, did not rely on size alone in picking up the tourney-clinching win. Tiny Phil Sorenson, batting leadoff for the Novatans, contributed three hits in three trips to the plate, scored two runs, stole a base, and proved to be a thorn in San Rafael's side on defense all day, especially on a pop fly to short right, where he sped out from his second base position to make a one-handed catch in front of right fielder Matt Listman.

Ernie Galliani blasted a 250-foot home run in the third inning over the left field fence to put the capper on a productive day for Novato, and to put the crusher on San Rafael pitcher Gerald Rapozo, who went all the way and suffered the brunt of the Novato attack.

Rapozo, not having the overpowering speed exhibited by Sears, was forced to rely on a curve to retire the Novatans, and for the first three innings was unsuccessful, as they racked him for three runs in the first, two in the second, and one in the third on Galliani's round-tripper.

After this, however, Rapozo settled down to retire six out of the next seven, but by then the damage had been done.

The score really could have been worse. Tom Wilson and Tom Carrigan of Novato were erased at the plate trying to score on teammates' hits on outstanding throws from the outfield, once from Tom Timmer in left to catcher Roy Olson, and again from center fielder John Martin to Olson.

Sears was not as sharp as he had been earlier in the tourney, as is evidenced by his three bases on balls and four wild pitches, but professional fielding by the team behind him prevented San Rafael from capitalizing on any of Sears' wildness. The Novato team played errorless ball, while San Rafael made three miscues, one of which accounted for two unearned runs for Novato in the first frame.

PRO-STYLE — Owen Christie, second baseman for the San Rafael American League All-Stars, went high in the air in an unsuccessful attempt to complete double play on Novato's Tom Wilson's ground ball. Ubiquitous Phil Sorenson (1) was forced at second on this play, but he had earlier scored a pair of runs, and collected three singles, to help lead Novato to a 6-1 win over San Rafael at Joe Wagner Field in Larkspur.

Cuba's Pan-Am Surprise

Cali, Colombia (UPI)—Traditional power in track and field put the United States out front as usual in the Pan-American Games today, but a stunning basketball defeat by Cuba served notice that the Yanks won't have the same cakewalk they had at Winnipeg four years ago.

The trackmen, led by record-breaking Marty Liquori and John Smith, came through Sunday to boost the United States to a total of eight gold medals thus far in the games.

Cuba was in second place in Gold Medals with six and in a flatfooted tie with the U.S. in total medals with 21 — a brilliant performance by Fidel Castro's forces in the first two days of competition among 30 nations of the Western Hemisphere here.

On Sunday the Cubans staged one of the most shocking upsets in Pan-Am history when they beat the U.S. basketball team 73-69 —only the second game the Yanks have ever lost in six Pan- American tournaments

SAN RAFAEL PROFS WIN PAN-AM WALK

Goetz Klopfer and Tom Dooley, two San Rafael High School teachers who take the safety adage, "Walk, don't run" seriously, placed 1-2 for the United States in the Pan American Games in Cali, Columbia, yesterday.

Klopfer, 28, placed first in the 20-kilometer walk in the time of 1 hour, 37 minutes and 30 seconds, less than a minute ahead of 26-year-old Dooley, who was second in 1:38:15.

The gold and silver medals from the two schoolteachers brings the United States' total to 21 through yesterday's action, tied with a surprisingly strong Cuban team.

Klopfer is a resource assistant at the high school, and Dooley is a physical education teacher. The two train with Bill Ranney, another San Rafael prof, for the walking races.

Klopfer and Dooley will not take part in any other events in the Pan Ams.

After the two speedy educators from Marin, but more than two minutes behind, came Olivares de la Torre of Mexico.

San Francisco Giant rookie sensation Dave Kingman hit two home runs in the second game of the Giant-Pittsburgh Pirate doubleheader yesterday. These, coupled with his first-game grand slam the day before, makes Kingman the latest young sensation for the Giants. Above, he's shown watching his second homer going over the fence in the fifth inning, and then being congratulated upon returning to the dugout. The umpire is Doug Harvey, and the catcher is Charles Sands. The Giants took both ends of the doubleheader from the Bucs, 11-7 and 8-3. (UPI Telephoto)

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

You can convert the 1-2-5-8 into a spare with a strike delivery. The 5-pin usually is the most troublesome in this set-up. Consequently, a fairly good "pocket hit" is needed to bring it down along with the others.

PAN-AM

and, what's more, the Cubans looked like the better team as they led nearly all the way.

In the bargain, Cuba picked up three Gold Medals in a single weightlifting class, crushed Haiti in baseball 15-1 as further proof they're ready to battle the U.S. for that championship and uncovered a strong challenger, Jesus Mirabal Leal, to Russ Hodge of the U.S. in the decathlon.

The basketball defeat put the U.S. team's back up against the wall. Now the Yanks must beat tough Brazil Tuesday and then easy Surinam to qualify for the championship round.

Cuba jumped off to an early lead, as much as 11 points in the first half. The U.S. cut it to 36-33 at halftime, fell seven points behind during the second half, moved up to one point behind with 2:32 to play, and then slipped into defeat. Pedro Chappe, who outplayed 6-foot-11 center Jim Chones of Marquette, led the scoring with 24 points.

On the night program, Liquori set a games record of 3:42.1 in winning the 1,500 meters by 10 yards over Canada's fast-closing Bill Smart; Smith, of Los Angeles, clipped three-tenths of a second off the 400-meter mark in winning in 44. seconds; Patty Johnson of San Clemente, Calif., easily won the women's 100-meter hurdles in 13.1 seconds; and Rick Drescher of Baltimore, captured the men's discus with a heave of 204 feet, 3 inches.

Cuba picked up a Gold Medal in women's foils fencing as Margarita Rodriguez was so excited after nosing out Ruth White of Baltimore, and crying out, "my country or death — long live the revolution," she fainted.

GIANTS

trailing 7-2 by the third, manager Charlie Fox lifted McCovey and stuck Kingman in again at first. The yougster responded with a run-scoring double in his first at-bat and a grand-slam in his third as the Giants came from behind for an unbelievabe 15-11 victory over Pittsburgh.

In Sunday's first game, Kingman was used as a pinchhitter in the eighth and struck out for the second out of the inning. Singles by Al Gallagher and Tito Fuentes and a hit batsman filled the bases with the Giants behind a run at 7-6, and Mays delivered two runs with a double and McCovey added three with his 14th homer to wrap up an 11-7 triumph.

McCovey rested in the second game and Kingman, in his first at-bat and against Dock Ellis, hit the first pitch to him—a slider over the heart of the plate—17 rows back in left field near the foul pole for a 2-0 lead. Inthe fifth, Ellis fed him a fastball outside and this time Kingman, who had 26 homers and 99 RBIs at Phoenix, sent a towering shot to right center for his second home run of the game and third in four days.

"I'm still in a daze," said the good-looking youngster. "I'm finding it hard to believe I'm here let alone that I've already hit three homers, and two off Ellis."

Ellis, who tok a 15-4 record into the game, wasn't talking after the game. He seemed thoroughly disgusted with himself and after Kingman's second homer kicked the rubber so hard that teammate Jackie Hernandez thought he hurt his foot.

"No question, the kid has power," said Fox. "He's a smart kid, too, and he looks like the kind of kid who will learn. What an asset he is going to be."

Kingman prefers first base but said he realizes that is McCovey's domain.

"When Willie is well no one plays first better than him," said Kingman. "I'm flattered just to be on the same team with the man."

Naturally, Kingman would like to play every day but he' in no hurry.

"I'll get my chances," he said. "I've got a lot to learn."

Kingman's first homer in the second game Sunday pushed the Giants in front and they never looked back with Gallagher adding three RBIs on a single and double.

San Francisco, which leads the N.L. West by nine games, takes on the Los Angeles Dodgers tonight in the first of a brief two-game series. John Cumberland (6-1) pitches for the Giants and Claude Osteen (11-7) goes for the Dodgers.

Jim Ray Hart, the often hurt third baseman, will start in tonight's game for the Giants after being recalled from Phoenix Sunday night. Taking his place with the Triple A club was outfielder Bernie Williams.

Honor Jackson To Pats In Duane Thomas Deal

Honor Jackson, Tamalpais High School and College of Marin football star, now a pro rookie from University of Pacific, was traded to the New England Patriots Saturday, in the trade that sent National Football Conference Rookie of the Year Duane Thomas from the Cowboys to New England.

Also going to England was Guard Halvor Hagen, in return for running back Carl Garrett and a 1972 draft choice.

Jackson, the Cowboys ninth round draft choice from UOP, was placed on waivers a week ago, and went unclaimed. The Cowboys then offered him to New England as part of the Thomas deal.

Jackson held UOP pass catching records, and is trying to make it in pro football as a wide receiver.

In New England, Thomas underwent questioning from the local press concerning his differences with Cowboy management, and stated, "Everything at Dallas happened at Dallas. Now I am with the Patriots."

General Manager Upton Bell said he didn't know how much difficulty he would have in getting Thomas to sign, but said he had been meeting on the subject on Thomas' unsigned contract and would continue today to negotiate.

Baseball

CLEVELAND (UPI)—"I am just going to play golf and see what comes," said former Cleveland manager Alvin Dark, who will leave Cleveland for his Miami home today.

"Baseball has been my life and managing is the thing I love most. If anyone is interested, I am still available and can be found at the country in Miami," added Dark, who was fired as Cleveland manager last Friday.

CLEVELAND (UPI)—"Sudden Sam" McDowell, whose fastball got him 20 wins last season, says he is no longer legally tied to the Cleveland Indians. The front office sees it otherwise.

McDowell, who is 10-10 this season, was suspended for failing to report for Saturday's game with the Oakland Athletics. Sam also missed Sunday's game.

He advised the Indians he regards his contract null and void as the result of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's negotiating a bonus contract he and the club entered into before the season.

SPORT SHORTS

Golf

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Jo Anne Gunderson Carner, winner of the $25,000 Bluegrass Invitational Golf Tournament Sunday, believes her era for dominating women's golf may have arrived.

"Golf seems to go through eras —the Babe Zaharias era, the Mickey Wright era, the Carol Mann era, the Kathy Whitworth era," Mrs. Carner said. "This could be the beginning of my era —at least I hope so. At the age of 32, I feel like I have 10 good years where I can be on top."

Auto Racing

ATLANTA (UPI)—Few men earn $1 million in a lifetime. Richard Petty did it in less than eight years, but now he says it doesn't mean that much to him.

Petty, from Randleman, N. C., became NASCAR and stock car racing's first million dollar winner Sunday after a thrilling, fender-banging duel with Bobby Allison, of Hueytown, Ala., in the 12th annual Dixie 500 at the Atlanta International Raceway.

Petty pocketed $20,650 for his win in the Dixie 500. That gave him $1,018,303 in lifetime winnings and upped his season's earnings to $189,385.

Tennis

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Tom Gorman, runnerup last year in the Buckeye Tennis Championships, became a bit concerned Sunday when firecracker Jim Connors won the first set and jumped out ahead in the second one.

But he rallied from a 2-1 deficit Sunday to beat the 18-year-old NCAA champ from Belleville, Ill. in the last two sets and win the Buckeye singles title.

HILVERSUM, Holland (UPI)—Gerald Battrick of Britain beat Australia's Ross Case 6-3, 6-3, 9-7 to win the men's singles final of the Dutch Open Tennis Championships. Evonne Goolagong, the Wimbledon titlist from Australia, beat Sweden's Christina Sandberg 8-6, 6-3 to take women's honors.

Barsotti's Wins 5-3 Over Drake

Doug Long, Nick Mattos and Steve Farrington provided the hitting punch for Barsotti's, as the Terra Linda team rolled up five runs in a big third inning to nail down a win over Drake, 5-3, in a Joe Di Maggio League game over the weekend.

Long and Mattos each contributed two-run singles, and Farrington produced a double and a single, as Barsotti's parlayed these and two passed balls into the five runs it needed to win.

Drake had picked up three unearned runs in the first two innings, but was held scoreless the rest of the way.

7 New Members For Hall Of Fame

CANTON, Ohio (UPI)—The late Vince Lombardi, whose son said "cherished every association" he had with the National Football League, was enshrined with six others in the Football Hall of Fame here during the weekend.

The Hall of Fame weekend was also highlighted by the ninth annual game, this year won by the Los Angeles Rams, 17-6, over the Houston Oilers.

The enshrinement ceremony, completed with unveiling of bronze busts of the likenesses of those being honored, took place on the steps of the Hall of Fame here. A total of 70 are now members.

Besides Lomardi, memorable tough coach of the Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins, those inducted included the late Bill Hewitt, 1930s star of the Chicago Bears and Philadelphia Eagles; former Cleveland Browns fullback Jim Brown; Andy Robustelli, New York Giants defensive end; Y.A. Tittle, also of the Giants; Frank Kinard, of the Brooklyn and New York teams of the old All-American League; and Norm Van Brocklin, of the Philadelphia Eagles.

Vince Lombardi Jr. attended to accept his father's award.

"If my father were here today he would be pleased," he said. "Few people realized how strongly my father felt about the NFL. He cherished every association he had with the league."

Lombardi died of cancer Sept. 3, 1970.

In the Hall of Fame game Saturday following the enshrinement, the Rams defense held the Oilers scoreless for nearly three quarters while first-year quarterback John Walton threw for two touchdowns and Dave Ray booted a 21-yard field goal.

The Rams scored only once in the first half, when Walton hit tight end Bob Klein on a pass play late in the second quarter. The quarterback came back in the third quarter with a 33-yard pass to wide receiver Randy Vataha that made it 14-0.

The Oilers' No. 2 draft choice, Lynn Dickey from Kansas State, completed a 49-yard pass down the sideline to wide receiver Charlie Joiner for Houston's only score, a third quarter touchdown. The extra point attempt failed.

Ray's field goal came in the fourth quarter

Marin Swimmers Impressive

By PAUL CANE

Charles Dickens said it was both "the best of times and the worst of times," but for the swimmers of the Marin Aquatic Club everything was coming up roses, as the young natators emerged tremendously successful in two major undertakings in widely-separated parts of the West last week.

Three MAC swimmers, Kim Hughes, Maura Campion and Spencer Eldred, placed highly in the California division of the National Junior Olympics at Chabot College in Hayward, while the rest of the team was demolishing the Reno Dolphin Swim Club 473-161 in the western Nevada city.

Of the three Junior Olympic competitors, MAC coach Don Swartz was especially pleased with Miss Hughes' performance. Kim, a slender 14-year-old blonde, improved her best 200 Meter Individual Medley performance by two full seconds to place second in a field that included the best medley swimmers in the State.

In recording her second place finish, Miss Hughes sped to a 2:35.5 clocking which qualified her for the Senior Womens' National AAU Championships in Houston in late August.

In routing the Reno club, the MAC took firsts in all relays and only dropped eight individual races. The Dolphins, premier AAU club in Nevada, will come to Marin next year for a return match with the MAC.

Miss Hughes placed fifth in another of her specialties, the 100 Meter Backstroke.

Giving promise for the future was Maura Campion, who took a fifth in the 200 Meter I.M. and an eighth in the 100 Meter Butterfly. Miss Campion, 13, will remain in her 13-14 age classification through next year, giving her an excellent chance to advance further in the competition.

Spencer Eldred, the only boy from the MAC to take part in the JO sectionals, nabbed two fifth places, one in the 100 Meter Breaststroke, and the other in the 200 Meter I.M. in Boys 13-14.

Only the winner in each 11-12 and 13-14 event qualifies for the National finals in August, regrettably, according to Coach Swartz, because "all three of the kids could have won and gone on if they had lived elsewhere in the U.S."

Swartz, however, was pleased with both the Reno results and the Junior Olympic performances, both what he termed "strong showings."

Bee Kilgore, Partner Lose

CHARLESTON, W.V. — The unseeded doubles team of Bee Kilgore of Tiburon and Marcy O'Keefe of Mountain View were cut down Saturday in their upset bid to take the Consolation title at the U.S. National Girls 16 tennis tournament 7-6, 6-4, by Carrie and Laurie Fleming of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Miss Kilgore and Miss O'Keefe had gained the consolations on a 6-4, 6-4 win over Sue Boyle and Robin Harris of San Diego and a 6-3, 6-3 victory over Sandy Scott and Stephanie Tolleson of Deerfield, Ill. Friday.

The Bay Area girls were knocked out of the winners bracket on Thursday, but bounced back to make the consolations by virtue of these two wins, only to lose to the Florida sisters team.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Monday Must Be Doing Things Right

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Rick Monday isn't quite sure he knows what he's doing but the Oakland Athletics' outfielder must be doing something right.

Monday, grounded most of the season with a batting slump, banged out five hits in 10 at bats Sunday to lead Oakland to a 7-3 and 4-2 doubleheader sweep over the Cleveland Indians.

Monday, who had gone 0-for-24 before hitting two home runs Saturday, belted his 13th of the season in the second inning of the opener to help starter Jim "Catfish" Hunter record his 13th victory against 11 defeats.

The 25-year-old outfielder also scored the go-ahead run in the nightcap with the help of an error by Cleveland second baseman Kurt Bevacqua.

Monday singled to open the fifth against reliever Ray Lamb and took second on Sal Bando's two out single. Bevacqua then booted Curt Blefary's grounder as Monday scored the go-ahead run and Angel Mangual singled home Bando.

"I never had a doubleheader I enjoyed more than today," said Monday, who reportedly received a $104,000 bonus to sign with the A's.

"I don't seem to be doing anything different at the plate," said Monday. "I started out the season batting .340 and before I knew it I was back down to .220."

In other American League action Boston swept a doubleheader from Chicago 5-1 and 6-1, Detroit edged California 4-3 in 16 innings, Milwaukee took a twinbill from Washington 4-3 and 3-2, Minnesota outslugged New York 10-7 and Kansas City at Baltimore was postponed because of rain.

In National League action, San Francisco took a pair from Pittsburgh 11-7 and 8-3, Los Angeles edged Cincinnati 5-4 in 11 innings, San Diego blanked Atlanta 2-0, Chicago nipped New York 3-2 in the opener of a scheduled doubleheader with the second game postponed because of rain, Houston trounced Montreal 8-1, and St. Louis and Philadelphia played to a 3-3 tie after 11 innings.

Reggie Smith triggered a four-run fourth inning outburst with a three run homer in the nightcap and Boston captured the opener on the strength of a four-run first inning.

Wilbur Wood, who had planned to pitch both games of the doubleheader was tagged for four runs in the first inning of the opener and was removed for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Bobby Mitchell's first two major league home runs won both games as Milwaukee downed the Senators twice. Mitchell, whose two-run homer in the third inning accounted for the winning runs in the first game, hit a two-run blast with the Brewers behind 2-1 in the sixth inning to win the second game.

Jim Northrup, hitless in his previous six at bats, powered his 11th home run of the season to break a four hour, 56 minute struggle and give the Tigers the victory over California.

Northrup's homer, his first since July 17, made a loser of Lloyd Allen, who allowed only three hits in the seven innings he worked.

Leo Cardenas' double followed five straight singles and keyed a six-run first-inning rally which carried the Twins to the victory over New York and gave reliever Tom Hall his fourth victory of the season.

Brodie More Than Ready For 49ers

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI) —The San Francisco 49ers enter the final week of preparations today for their first exhibition season contest with their key man already showing signs that he's more than ready.

Quarterback John Brodie handled the team on only 10 plays in the club's last intrasquad scrimmage Saturday night, but he took the first team offense to two touchdowns against the second string defense.

Brodie, the National Football League's Player of the Year last season, moved the team 70 yards in six plays for the first score and then tossing a 27-yard pass to Gene Washington for the second touchdown.

In the 10-play series, Brodie completed five passes in five attempts for 115 yards.

Youngest U.S. Open Winner Dies At 79

YEADON, Pa. (UPI)—John J. McDermott, Jr., the youngest player ever to win the U.S. Open Golf Championship, died Sunday at the age of 79.

McDermott was 19 when he became the first American-born pro to win the Open in 1911. He won again the following year to become only one of five golfers to score successive victories and retired because of ill health in 1914.

Raider Rookie On Injured List

Koegel, Oakland's third draft choice, suffered an ankle injury in the contest last Friday in Chicago and will be out from 10 to 14 days.

Three other rookies who played in the all-star game against Baltimore, Ohio State defensive back Jack Tatum, Bowling Green linebacker Phil Villapiano and Stanford tight end Bob Moore, worked out with the team Sunday for the first time.

Stocks Climb With Lift From Strike Settlements

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks climbed sharply through the first two hours of trading today.

Some analysts called the rise a "technical bounce" coming after last week's sharp plunge. They noted, however, that the list got a big psychological lift from settlement of a selected rail strike and from agreement on a new steel labor contract averting a strike over the weekend.

Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a gain of 0.64 at 96.22, while advances topped declines, 896 to 311, among the 1,459 issues crossing the tape.

Prices also advanced in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Advances topped declines by more than a two to one margin.

Among the most active Amex issues were Continental Materials up fractionally on 37,000 shares, Loews warrants fractionally higher on a volume of 25,000, and Asamera Oil also slightly higher on 15,000 shares.

Motors, chemicals and oils also ranged to about a point higher.

Rails, airlines, and aircrafts generally tacked on fractions.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Sun Oil Stock Should Be Taken

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I would like to know if Sun Oil $2.25 preferred will absolutely be worth $60 a share June 1, 1975, as per their agreement. This reads "at Sun Oil's option." Please explain. — R.U.

A. This preferred stock is redeemable by the company on 30 days notice, after June 1, 1975. The $60 redemption price remains firm through May 31, 1976, when it drops to $59. Thereafter annual reductions of $1 in redemption price occur. Whether or not the company exercises its option to redeem the 18.2 million preferred shares will depend on interest rates at that time.

If prevailing interest rates on preferreds of approximately equal caliber are much above 3¾ per cent — the yield on the preferred at $60 — Sun Oil would be unlikely to disturb these shares. What value the market will accord the preferred will depend not only on the interest factor but will also be influenced by the trading level on the common, since the preferred is convertible. In other words you have no guarantee that these shares will be worth $60 on June 1, 1975.

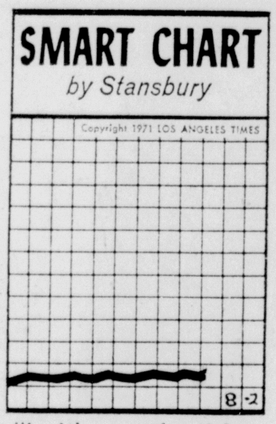

Q. I am a novice in finance and would appreciate your explaining to me very simply the difference between bond and common stock investment. — P.R.

A. The main differences between bonds and common stocks are that the former represent debt of a corporation and are fixed as to income whereas common stocks represent ownership and dividend payments can change. Bonds fluctuate less and are certainly more secure than shares in the same corporate situation.

Failure of an industrial company to pay bond interest usually means bankruptcy is imminent, whereas reduction or lapse in dividends has no such connotation. Most corporate indebtedness is issued with a redemption price only moderately above the sale price — which works to the corporation's advantage and against the buyer.

Finally, since bonds are fixed as to income, they supply no protection against inflation. This is offered in good measure by those common stocks on which dividend increases have surpassed devaluation of the dollar.

Merger Discussed

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — Southdown Inc. and Union Sugar Co. have announced that discussions have been initiated to look into the possible acquisition of some or all of the assets of Union Sugar by Southdown Inc.

Gulf Oil Reports Income Increase

PITTSBURGH (BW) — Gulf Oil Corp. has reported consolidated net income for the six months ended June 30 was $29,000,000, an increase of 6.1 per cent over the $29,000,000 earned in the first six months of 1970.

The earnings are equal to $1.42 per share, 8 cents more than the $1.34 earned in the first half of last year.

Gulf's sales and operating revenues for the first half of 1971 were $3,561,000,000, an increase of 12.2 per cent over the $3,173,000,000 reported for the same period last years.

Good Signs In State's Economy

LOS ANGELES (BW) — California's economy showed signs of recovering during 1971's first half, after apparently dipping to its lowest point in November, Security Pacific National Bank reported last week.

According to the bank's newly developed statewide business activity index, California posted its seventh consecutive gain during June, climbing up to 130.7 (1967 equals 100) from November's low of 120.2.

Data for this new index, compiled by the bank's economic research division, were developed from each of economic research's current indexes of regionalized monthly activity for Southern California, the Northern Coastal area and the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys.

"California's business activity index during 1971's first six months averaged 5.2 per cent above index reading for comparable 1970," said John H. Owens, assistant vice president and administrator of the economic research's business studies section.

In comparison, first half gains for 1969-70 averaged 1.9 per cent, while increases during 1968-69 and 1967-68 averaged 8.6 and 8.9 per cent respectively.

"Our national economy peaked in November, 1969, according to the National Bureau of Economic Research, and then waned until November, 1970," Owens said.

"Security Pacific Bank's economic analysis shows California economic activity reached its high and low points at approximately the same time as the nation; our index differs from preliminary information released by the California Department of Finance, which indicates California's low may have occurred in March, 1971," he added.

Various economic indicators during this year's first six months point up California's recovery from the 1970 recession. "However," cautioned Owens, "This economic picture lacks a uniform brightness."

Included in California's cloudy economic picture: inflation failing to slow as much as predicted: interest rates rising since early spring, despite an anticipated downward trend, and a continuing rise in unemployment.

"This economic sector — unemployment — usually lags six months behind others during an upturn, and may be considered one of the last to reflect an improvement," noted Owens.

"Additionally, California's economic downturn coincided with cutbacks in defense and space spending — these cutbacks have had an adverse effect on a large segment of the state economy."

Looking at the brighter aspects of California's economic picture reveals several optimistic trends. Spurring this optimism have been improved housing starts and real estate sales. Other signs of improvement include increased personal income and higher weekly earnings of manufacturing workers.

Owens explained that Security Pacific Bank's new statewide business activity index comprises data from each of the bank's four existing business indexes weighted on the basis of each region's population.

Southern California accounts for 60 per cent of the statewide index, followed by Northern Coastal California at 27 per cent. San Joaquin bears an eight per cent weight, while Sacramento Valley makes up the remaining five per cent.

These four indexes, consisting of seasonally adjusted data covering finance, trade, industry, employment and building and real estate activity, provide information covering 43 of California's 58 counties.

Cal-Western Tells First Half Earnings

Harold S. Hook, president, told Cal-Western Life directors at their regular monthly meeting that the earnings record for the first six months of 1971, compared to $1.5 million, or 29 cents per share, for the corresponding period of 1970.

New Firm Plans To Feature Modular Storage Furniture

A new business opening at 1010 B Street, San Rafael, this week is The Cube, marketing a new modular storage furniture system for home and office.

According to owners Glenn and Margaret Cavalli of Mill Valley, it offers a new concept in furniture design resulting from years of study. Starting with a simple open cabinet as the basic unit and an invisible fastening device, it can be converted into a bookcase, cupboard, desk or a number of other pieces, depending on the type of additional units used, assembled according to the individual's needs and supplied in several colors and finishes.

Cavalli is an artist and designer, with a studio in Sausalito. Mrs. Cavalli will be conducting most of the San Rafael operation.

Modules are manufactured in Los Altos where there is another Cube outlet which has been in operation for about four months. Cavalli and his associates expect to expand in other areas and are considering doing so via the franchise route.

TRAWLER YACHT SALES in San Rafael has been named Northern California dealer for the Hong Kong-built Farallon 40 trawler, offered in single or twin diesel options. Owners Addison Mooney, James Howard and Bud Gestri also handle the Newport trawler line and brokerage in trawler designs.

AFTER EXPANDING ITS STORE in the Corte Madera Shopping Center by taking on extra available space adjoining the north side, House of Fabrics has completely remodelled and has about 35 per cent more room.

The Corte Madera House of Fabrics store is one of the busiest the chain has in Northern California — though it is by no means the largest.

ROBERT R. LYON of Sausalito has been trasferred to Orlando, Fla. by Employers Self Insurance Service as vice president in charge of nine states in the southeast part of the United States. Employers Self Insurance is a division of the I.N.A. Corp. Most recently Lyon has been Northern California manager. He has been with the company and other I.N.A. subsidiaries for the past 20 years.

NEW CHIEF OF SECURITY at the Northgate Mall in San Rafael is Fred Finley of Novato, who has been there six years. He now has a staff of three officers under his command. His career in security work began in 1959 after a career of 30 years in the United States Coast Guard. Since then he has been head of security for Du Mont Missile Cone Co. and with Associated Security Service.
